

Death List In New York City Shows Decrease

Survey Reveals 609 Fewer Deaths In 1929 Than In Previous Year

MORE LIVES SAVED AMONG CHILDREN

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The young are living longer and the old are dying faster in New York City.

However, that little fellow called a germ took a beating in 1929 for there were 609 fewer deaths in the city than in 1928, according to the annual report of the Commissioner of Health, Shirley W. Wynne, today submitted to Mayor James J. Walker.

The deaths recorded in 1929 in New York City on an estimated population of six and one-third million signify a general death rate of 12.77 per 1,000 population which compares favorably with 18.91 deaths and a death rate of 12.93 in 1928.

More Lives Saved

There were more lives saved among children and a marked decrease in deaths from typhoid, measles, diphtheria, whooping cough, infantile paralysis, pneumonia and tuberculosis with not a single death occurring from small pox throughout the year.

But a darker side was pictured by the health commissioner to the increasing death rates of older people.

"Despite the steady search for effective remedies for some of the important causes of death in the older age groups, science has thus far furnished us with no cures for such prevalent diseases as cancer, Bright's Disease, chronic heart disease and diseases of the arteries," said Dr. Wynne.

"These diseases as a rule attack persons over 45 years of age, among whom these diseases appear to be more prevalent than formerly."

Accident Death Increase

There was also an increase during 1929 in deaths chargeable to accidents, principally those due to vehicular accidents, Dr. Wynne reported.

The number of accidental deaths in 1929 totaled 4769 as against 4591 in 1928. An unduly large proportion of these accidents were among children between five and 15 years of age, killed while playing in the streets.

"Since 1910 there has been a continuous rise in the number of deaths from organic heart disease," said Dr. Wynne. "In 1910 with 6,870 deaths, the rate was 1.44 per 1,000, in 1929, with 17,473 deaths the rate was 2.88."

"Since this disease is often the result of preventable diseases in childhood, many of these deaths are caused by the neglect of health measures during the earlier years."

He was responsible for the death of 7847 New Yorkers in 1929, the highest death toll ever exacted by this disease in this city and an increase of 122 deaths over last year.

An increase is also recorded in deaths due to disease of the arteries, there having been 4778 deaths in 1929 as against 4460 in 1928.

Brighter statistics revealed that 870 more children survived in 1929, the death rate being at 59 per 1,000 births as against 66 in 1928.

While yesterday's extreme heat probably did not set any records for the day, it was the hottest New Year's Day in the last ten years. A review of the figures shows that only one or two New Year's days have been very cold in the last ten years.

Who would be mean enough to steal up on a front porch at night and take a beautifully trimmed and illuminated Christmas tree, after its owner had spent time and money in attempting to add a little to the outdoor decorations, Pa New finds it hard to understand. Nevertheless, a large tree with its lights and all, was stolen from the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Blaha of Winter avenue two days after Christmas. Mr. Blaha just mentioned it to Pa New today.

Travel through downtown alleys this morning was risky business. When an automobile approached, one almost needed a diver's suit to keep from being half drowned. Most of the alleys in the business section are in a deplorable condition, with deep holes worn in spots which fill up with water during a rain. Most motorists seem to try and hit the deepest spots for the benefit of passing pedestrians.

HUNT FOR MAN IN LEESBURG CRIME

sideburns, which are slightly gray near the temples. His face is said to be rough appearing.

He was wearing a yellowish colored sweater and blue trousers, when last seen.

He was without hat or coat, also money, when he disappeared following the murder. He is a coal miner by occupation and recently came to the Leesburg district from Detroit. He is also said to have served a term in the penitentiary for a previous stabbing affair.

According to the story told in Leesburg, Cingini and Tantiello, or Panella (both names being given) engaged in an argument over a board bill. Tantiello pulled a knife and stabbed Cingini four times, the man sinking to the floor. As he sank down he drew a gun and fired four times at the fleeing assailant. As he fired the fourth shot, he fell over, dead.

Tantiello, or Panella, immediately fled the scene of his crime and apparently had a good start ahead of the authorities.

PROHIBITION FLARE WIDENS IN CAPITAL

dodging the very job for which it was created.

"The commission certainly should report the facts to congress. One of the facts should be whether or not prohibition can be enforced. If it is simply going to recommend methods for spending more of the taxpayer's money, then it will have accomplished nothing, congress already has all the facts it needs to spend money and we might well have saved the cost of the commission itself if that is all its going to do."

Report Is Aired

The commission's preliminary report, thoroughly aired though never made public by the White House, dealt with court congestion, the transfer of the enforcement machinery from the treasury to the justice department, the codification of prohibition statutes and unification of the border patrols. Mr. Hoover, according to Jones, will send these recommendations to congress as soon as a joint congressional committee is formed to handle them. This committee will be created shortly after congress returns next week.

The commission, however, will face serious attacks from the wet ranks on the issue of its functions. The wets have asserted all along that the commission was created to determine first, whether the dry law can be enforced, and second, the means of enforcement if it can be enforced. They will argue that the commission, by abandoning the first half of this program, has rendered its findings worthless.

This argument will go hand in hand with the wet contention that all increase in crime can be laid to the door of prohibition and that once the prohibition problem is properly solved, the general crime wave can be controlled and eliminated.

The dries have taken just the opposite stand. So long as prohibition is in the constitution, they have said, the only question to be determined by congress is how to properly enforce it.

Will Support Commission

They naturally will support the commission's determination not to investigate the "wisdom of prohibition."

"I am glad to learn," was the way Jones announced this decision, "that the commission is unanimous that the wisdom or unwisdom of the eighteenth amendment is not involved in their work; that it is part of the constitution and that the function of the commission is to devise the best means possible for its enforcement."

Jones added that the commission's greatest problem was to solve the industrial alcohol question and to determine bone-dry restrictions for the handling of it. He said the commission probably would conclude all its prohibition inquiries by July 1 and added "it is a device method by which punishment for law violation can be made more swift and sure, it will have fully justified its creation."

The wets naturally took a different view. Led by Senator Blaine (R) of Wis., they protested against the commission ignoring the question of the prohibition law's "enforceability."

"If the commission should inquire into the enforceability of prohibition as well as the means of enforcing it," said Blaine, "if the law cannot be enforced, the commission naturally can devise no means of enforcing it."

Car In Garage

The Chrysler which has been sought by the police is in a garage according to Donnie. The name of the city where the garage is located is one of the few things Donnie doesn't know, but he says that it is on a corner, a little off the main road, and that it is a small town near Bellaire, O.

All day long Wednesday Donnie was active. He had been given a white rabbit and this occupied much of his attention. "It has a fleecy coat as white as snow," said he, "and someone asked him who it was had a fleecy coat as white as snow. "Mary's little lamb" he replied, and then swung into the old nursery rhyme.

Questions asked him on the day he was brought from Bellaire were the same. He does not cry, is friendly, and apparently takes the fact that his mother is not with him in a philosophic manner.

Had Donnie been an ordinary youngster of four and a half, the police would be still groping for clues. As it is they have the story of the shooting, how it was done, who was in the car.

Very apparently, some one has worked with Donnie to teach him the things he knows. There are evidences of a training by someone interested in him and this seems to bear out the statement that his mother is devoted to him. She is but 21 years of age now, was married when she was fifteen and some time ago was deserted by her husband, who is now said to be in Pittsburg, Cal.

It would seem that the affection and devotion she might be expected to hold for her husband had been added to her devotion for her son and that she had spent much of her time in training him.

Criminal she may be, and a violator of the moral code, but her one virtue seems to be a devotion for her child. Sooner than part with him she took him with her on trips of crime, and this almost animal like devotion for her offspring may be the magnet that will attract her back to the toils of the law.

STAR LORE

By Arthur Dev. Carpenter.

A total eclipse of the sun is awe inspiring. The moon makes its contact with the western limb of the sun; slowly the sun disappears as the moon passes before it until when fully effaced, the dainty pearl white Corona flashes forth, apparently around the black outline of the moon.

Solar prominences are seen appearing as brilliant red projections. To enhance the splendor, the stars and close-in planets appear, a strange yellow glow next thing to night fills earth's landscape; barnyard fowls retire to their roosts, cattle come up and pressed; two or three strange minutes pass and the sun's limb flashes forth.

Young Man Wounds His Sweetheart, Commits Suicide

(International News Service)

BUCYRUS, O., Jan. 2.—After seriously wounding his sweetheart, Miss Rose Miller, Milo Goodwin, 25, turned a shotgun on himself and committed suicide here today.

Miss Miller, whose right shoulder was shattered by shotgun slugs, is in a local hospital. Attaches there expect she will recover.

On Way to Work

The shooting occurred at a street corner here. Goodwin and Miss Miller were going to work. According to police, Miss Miller was walking in the company of Miss Mary Fisher.

Goodwin, who, officers said, had recently quarreled with his sweetheart, drove up in an automobile and asked Miss Miller to ride with him.

When she refused, Goodwin shouted: "Damn you, I'll kill you."

He took a single-barreled shotgun from his machine and fired it point-blank at the girl.

Dies In Hospital

Leaving her screaming on the sidewalk Goodwin drove his automobile a half square away, where he reloaded the shotgun, placed the muzzle over his heart and pulled the trigger.

He died 15 minutes later in a local hospital.

Police are unable to learn much about the reported love affair between the two principals in the shooting. Parents of the two are reported to be hysterical over the tragedy.

Authorities sought to question Miss Miller as she lay in a serious condition in the hospital. She was unable to talk. They turned to Miss Fisher for information and though she was able to give them an account of the tragedy, she could not enlighten them as to the real motive for the shooting.

Two Injured In Accidents Reported

Police Bet Reports Of Numerous Accidents On Streets Of City

Recent reports made to the police concerning automobile accidents show two people injured and several cars damaged.

Miss Jean McMillen, 301 Hazlercroft avenue, was en route east on West Washington street, at the west end of the Washington street bridge, according to the report made to the police, when a woman walked out on the street in front of her machine.

The woman was knocked down, but was apparently not seriously injured. Miss McMillen did not report the name.

Evelyn Lestas, 322 1/2 Shaw street, reported that she was en route south on Highland avenue at Norwood avenue when a machine bearing Pennsylvania license 446B3, going in the same direction and following her machine, hit her car as she was making a right-hand turn into Norwood avenue. Some damage was done.

Lloyd S. Thompson of 332 East Luton street reported that he had his machine parked in front of his home when B. F. Nimmo, 311 South Walnut street, going east on Luton street, hit the car of Fred E. Singer, 828 East Luton street, parked in the rear of his machine.

The Nimmo car then went up over the curb and hit his machine. All the machines were damaged.

Nimmo in his report claims that a car parked on the side of the street pulled out, causing him to pull over and hit the Singer machine, go up over the curb and hit the other machine.

Tony Recupio of 1010 Agnew street reported that he was driving the car of Saccomanti Brothers east on Cherry street at North Cedar street, as a machine, Pennsylvania license 462GH, going south on Cedar street, made a left-hand turn onto Cherry street. In trying to avoid this machine Recupio reports that he hit another car.

L. L. Williams, 309 North Cascade street, reports that he was en route west on Croton avenue at Haus avenue, as a boy came down the street on a sled, and to avoid hitting the boy he ran his machine into a street.

His sister, Miss E. Williams, who was in the car with him, was slightly injured and was taken to the New Castle hospital for treatment.

Roy C. Hubbard of 108 East Reynolds street reported that he was en route east on East Washington street at Mill street and collided with the car of Perry D. Rice, which was going south on Mill street. Some damage was done.

COUPLE CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Within sight of respective birthplaces, and in the home where they have resided during their entire married life, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Cox of Pulaski township celebrated their golden wedding anniversary New Year's day. The event was observed with an anniversary dinner, attended by children and grandchildren.

Fifty years ago Lewis Cox and Miss Sue Cooper were united in marriage in New Castle by Rev. John Phillips. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cox took up their residence in Pulaski township on a part of what was known as the 500-acre tract. Farm land at that time was procurable only at the cost of excessive labor in clearing away the forest. Single handed Mr. Cox took up this task and cleared 50 acres which made up their farm. Here the young couple took up their residence and have lived on the same farm for 50 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox are well known, not only in their own vicinity, but throughout the entire county.

The dinner was attended by the following, including three daughters and eight grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Means and daughter Ednor of Youngstown, O.; Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Wise, Misses Ethel and Isabel Wise, Donald Wise and Lewis Wise of Struthers, O.; C. C. Paden and daughters, Ruth and Dorothy, of New Bedford; Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Potter and Miss Margaret Potter of Hollidaysburg, Pa.

Weaver-Garrick Nuptials
Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Weaver of West Cherry street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Iva Leah Mary, to Robert J. Garrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garrick, of Mass, Mich.

The ceremony was solemnized Tuesday, December 31, at Rockland, Mich., in the parsonage of St. Mary's church, with Rev. Bernard Linnemann officiating. They were attended by Leona Weaver, a sister of the bride and Armas Whitman of Mass, Mich.

The bride is a graduate of the New Castle high school, class of '24 and the New Castle Hospital school of nursing, class of '27. Mr. Garrick is a graduate of Mass High school, class of '24. They will make their home in Mass, Mich.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary kerosene; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.

ANNUAL DINNER EVENT OF NEW YEAR'S DAY

Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Felch, Lincoln avenue, entertained members of the 1914 Book Club and their husbands, at their annual turkey dinner New Year's day. An elaborate menu was served at 6 o'clock, and holiday tones prevailed in the table appointments, where covers were arranged for 32 guests.

The committee assisting the hostess included Mrs. Herb McGoun, Mrs. H. G. Preston, Mrs. Russell Urmon, Mrs. Carl Reed and Mrs. Harry Urmon.

After dinner hours were spent informally, with bridge and music. The regular club meeting will be with Mrs. W. L. Beal, Leasure avenue, Thursday, January 9.

Polen-Porter

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Edythe, Eloise Polen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Polen of Harding avenue, to Curtis K. Porter son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Porter of Walmo. The ceremony took place Wednesday, January 1, at the parsonage of the Highland U. P. church with Rev. C. J. Williamson officiating, with the ring ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of blue georgette and velvet and carried pink roses.

Miss Dorothy Kinney, who wore a gown of brown and tan crepe, and carried tulle, attended the bride and groom were the only attendants.

A wedding dinner supplemented the ceremony, and out of town guests were Mrs. Helen Sigel of Yakima, Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zeigler of Ellwood City and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hogan of Erie, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Hemphill left later in the day for a wedding trip and will reside with the bride's parents until the latter part of January when they will leave to make their home in Gary, Ind.

Court Elects Officers

Rigle Court No. 9, Tribe of Ben Hur held their regular meeting last night in the Clendenin Hall, at which time officers for 1930 were chosen. Ralph Mayers was elected chief; Bertha Daugherty, past chief; judge, Lillie Evans; teacher, Byrle Evans; keeper of tribute, Bertha Daugherty; Captain, Mary Lightner; guide, Elizabeth Evans; door keeper, Hugh Shields; trustees, Hugh Shields and Ralph Mayers. Mrs. Minnie Mayers, secretary, is appointed by the supreme office.

At the close of the business session there was a card party for the members with delicious refreshments served by the committee.

January 15 will be the time of the next meeting.

Ninth Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Andrews, East Garfield avenue, entertained in honor of the ninth birthday of their niece, Annetta Maria Billingham, of Lebanon, Pa., Tuesday afternoon.

Hokum and music were pastimes, and prizes were won by Mary Lo Marvin and Alice Sewall.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. F. Billingham.

The guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. C. F. Billingham, will leave Friday to spend the winter in San Diego, Cal.

ENTERTAINS GUESTS AT AFTERNOON TEA

Miss Barbara Schulz, was a pleasing hostess when she entertained a number of guests at bridge in her home on Butler avenue New Year's afternoon. Four tables were in play and lovely favors were won by Mrs. James D. Crawford, and Miss Ruth Zerner.

The hostess was assisted in serving dainty refreshments by Miss Mary Shaffer.

Out of town guests were Mrs. M. B. Klinesmith, of Grove City; Mrs. Paul Dyke, of Blackstone, Va., and Miss Mary Shaffer, of New York City.

JANUARY LUNCHEON FOR WIMODAUSIS

Mrs. J. M. Wallace will be in charge of the Wimodausis luncheon at The Cathedral, Wednesday, January 10, and the program will be arranged by Mrs. Anna Wagner.

Those planning to attend will call Mrs. Wallace, 1631-J.

Plans are being made for the annual party to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization, which will be an event of Friday, January 10. Mrs. Charles Pinkerton is chairman of the committee.

M. C. Society Entertained
Section I of the Margaret Coppeland society of the Third United Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs. I. J. Lytle, East New Castle, last night for the first meeting of the new year. The business session and devotionals were in charge of Mrs. H. A. Anderson and a Christmas package exchange featured the evening.

During the evening the capsule ladies made themselves known to each other and selected new capsules for the coming year. Radio music and a general good time was enjoyed by each one and the hostess, at a late hour served a dainty repast, with her three daughters, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Houk and Mrs. McCowan, as aids.

Mrs. Clarence Johnson was chosen as the leader for 1930, with Mrs. Earl Powell and Mrs. Laie Christy as secretary and treasurer.

The society will meet February 1 with Mrs. John Kallanjan of East New Castle, Pa.

Douglas Hartzell

Miss Sylvia Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas of Mount Jackson, became the bride of Harold R. Hartzell son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hartzell of Hillcrest avenue Wednesday noon at the parsonage of the Highland United Presbyterian church, with Rev. C. J. Williamson officiating.

The bride was attired in blue crepe and the attendants were Miss Phoebe Dufford, Clarence Barley, and Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Hartzell.

A wedding dinner for the immediate families was served at noon in the home of the groom's parents, and in the evening in the bride's home.

Mrs. Hartzell is employed with W. J. Offutt Company, and Mr. Hartzell is employed with the Sears Roebuck Company. They will reside with the groom's parents.

New Year's Guests

George Kline, a student at the University of Pittsburgh, who has been spending the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Kline, Wallace avenue, entertained a number of Pitt students over New Year's at his home. Included in the party were the Misses Velma Krasick of Gasport, N. D.; Rose Nassau of Chicago, Ill.; Sadie Miller of Norfolk, Va.; Ruth Lieberman, Mildred Levenson, Florence Roth, Pittsburgh; Dorothy Smith of Tennyon, N. Y., and the Messrs. ANNUAL BANQUET IS ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Members of the Keltic club with their wives as guests held their annual banquet New Year's eve at the Elks club. The club was organized in 1911 and each year the members have held a banquet on New Year's eve to which their wives have been invited, the only exception having been in 1918 when the members were all in the service.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dietterle, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Drumm, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sowers and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Warnock, Walter Smith of Cleveland, was the only member not present this year.

After the dinner they repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Snyder of Butler avenue where the evening was spent in cards and music. Prizes were won by Mrs. Ralph Montgomery and Walter Dietterle.

Birthday Party.

A pleasant event was enjoyed New Year's day when a number of relatives gathered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Porter, Neshannock boulevard, in honor of the former's birthday anniversary.

An elaborate dinner was served at noon with a large birthday cake centering the table.

Many gifts were received by the guest of honor.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. George Porter and son, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Simons, Mrs. Clara Boyd, Mrs. E. A. Hoover and grandson Junior Rustler, Howard Denny and Mrs. Martha DeLong all of Franklin, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Fox and family, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Cramer and family, Mrs. William Ricer and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter and family of this city.

Stag Dinner

Honoring the 64th birthday anniversary of her father, John C. Gray, 610 Taylor street, Miss Betty L. Gray entertained at a surprise stag dinner Wednesday evening. Covers were laid for eight and the table was centered with a birthday cake and tall red tapers. The hostess was assisted by her sister, Mrs. George S. Dodds, and Miss Marietta Daugherty.

The guests included James Grieg, Oscar Saul, Frank Meyers, William Mulcahy, Ray Perry, Mr. Southern and Mr. Layton.

O. U. T. Club

Mr. and Mrs. Nick Raymond, of Scotland Lane entertained the O. U. T. club members in their home Tuesday evening. Cards and music were pastimes, and later new officers were elected. President, Edward Coyne; vice president, Joseph O'Laughlin; treasurer, Mrs. Albert O'Laughlin; and secretary, Mrs. Edward Coyne.

The hostess was assisted by her daughters Jennie and Anna in serving dainty refreshments.

In two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Edward Coyne, West Washington street will be hostess.

Tureen Luncheon Enjoyed.

The members of Section One of the First Christian church were delightfully entertained at a one o'clock luncheon in the home of Mrs. H. G. Preston, East Lincoln avenue. Tuesday, when 15 members sat down to a prettily decorated table. Appointments were in keeping with the Yuletide season.

After luncheon a short business session was held and the remaining afternoon hours spent in a social manner.

Entertains at Watch Party

Bertha Leonhardt of Cunningham avenue, delightfully entertained a group of friends in her home Tuesday evening for a watch party. Cards and dancing were enjoyed and at midnight a sauer kraut dinner was served. According to an old superstition, sauer kraut served at midnight New Year's eve brings prosperity for the new year.

The table was cleverly decorated with a doll dressed in yellow and white in the center, representing 1930.

Family Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Donnan, entertained at a family dinner in their home on Maryland avenue, New Year's day. Tones of red and green were used in decoration, and covers were laid for 22 guests. Mrs. H. J. Smith assisted the hostess in serving.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Smith of Youngstown, O., were out of town guests.

The Halle Bros. Co.

beginning tomorrow

INTRODUCING the newest in corset apparel—garments so new that we have scarcely had time to unpack them. If you want the new dresses to look well and fit well—these are the garments to wear. And their January prices are so low that you can purchase enough for months to come, at decided savings.

THE foundation garments offered are the result of a special analysis made in our Cleveland establishment. In result we announce these changes: a firmer line in front to hold in the diaphragm; a higher waistline at the back; and the use of soft laces and silks, entirely boneless—making these foundation garments as lovely as your finest lingerie!

Come in and see these new things at your earliest opportunity—and take advantage of their January prices.

*We also have a few boned models for those who prefer them.

January Prices:

One-piece garments cut on the newest lines	$8.95 to $24.95
Another group of one-piece garments	$3.95 to $10.95
Compacts (one-piece)	$12.95 to $24.95
Step-in Girdles	$3.95 and Up
Side-hook Girdles	$6.95

ST. MARY'S CHURCH SCENE OF WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Carolyn Schmadner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schmadner of Lucinda, Pa., and John C. Rogan, son of Mrs. B. J. Rogan of Young street, this city, was solemnized in St. Mary's church Tuesday morning, with Rev. Fr. P. J. McKenna officiating.

The wedding march was played by Steven Gulinski, and vocal selections were rendered by Steven Griffith and Francis Morrissey, under the direction of Rev. Fr. P. S. Clifford.

A gown of turquoise blue was worn by the bride, with matching accessories, and she carried Ophelia roses.

Miss Adeline Hyble of Erie as brides maid was attired in peach crepe, and carried hillside roses. Bernard Rogan served his brother as best man.

Following a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., Philadelphia and New York, Mr. and Mrs. Rogan will reside at 803 Young street, after January 15.

Mr. Rogan is employed with the Pennsylvania railroad.

THE BOY FROM THE HICK TOWN

THE so-called hick town has lately become a source of great inspiration to our professional humorists. A hick town, say the various users of this convenient formula, is a place where a backfire is never mistaken for a pistol shot; where bedtime is orthodox; where woodpeckers eat up the depot; where central can tell you whether it was a girl or a boy; where the neighbors will supply you with a conscience if you lack one; where there is no parking problem; where a curfew disturbs the residents' rest; where fine cut tobacco is no handicap socially, and so on and on.

With no intention of becoming terribly heavy over the matter, we want to add that a hick town is a place where 26 of our 29 presidents were born and where seven out of 10 of the immortals in New York's national hall of fame originated. A hick town that didn't have a name produced Lincoln. Hick towns gave us most of our great literary figures of the past and practically all of those now living. Hick towns produce our Edisons.

If we may, then we would like to suggest that a hick town is a place where a boy has an excellent opportunity to lay the foundation of future greatness.

THE OLD INN THAT SHELTERED CONGRESS

The report that Henry Ford is negotiating for the purchase of the old inn in York county which sheltered the members of the Continental Congress when they were fleeing from Howe's army will be of interest to all Pennsylvanians. This ancient house, half way between Wrightsville and the city of York, was built in 1743 and is, therefore, of unusual historic interest. It is claimed that General Washington was also a guest there, but we need not take this too seriously, because there are few old houses in the Keystone state which do not claim the honor of having at least once entertained the Father of his Country.

But, whether Mr. Ford carries out his purpose of making a museum of this house or not, the report will be a fresh reminder of the fact that the city of York was once the capital of the nation. It was temporary, to be sure, but the fathers of the republic sat there from September 30, 1777, until June 27, 1778, passing laws and providing ways and means for carrying on the Revolution. It is to be said for these patriots that they remained in Philadelphia as long as it was possible to do so, and only turned toward York to avoid being captured by the invading Britishers.

Pennsylvania is filled with important reminders of the past, and York shares with Philadelphia the distinction of once having been host to the Continental Congress.

"SUCKER" MERCHANDISING

A practice which has caused untold annoyance to hundreds of thousands of individuals throughout the United States is drawing the attention of the postal authorities and congress. It is known as "mail merchandising."

The system practiced by "mail merchandisers" is an adaptation of the plan first used by worthy and legitimate causes. It consists of sending to names on a purchased mailing list goods, usually neckties, handkerchiefs or cards, which may be retained at a stated price or returned. They may be absolutely useless to the person to whom they are addressed, yet if he neglects to return them, follow up letters are sent which take on a blackmailing character.

Uncle Sam's mails were never intended for such purposes. They burden the mails unnecessarily and wrongfully exploit low postal rates. Since the mails are not self-supporting—the postal deficit running into the millions annually—the practice amounts to making the taxpayers pay part of the overhead of these mushroom enterprises.

Victims of the system and reputable merchants who suffer from such business tactics are entitled to relief. But why wait for the government to act, when the public could provide its own relief by the simple expedient of refusing to play the part of the "sucker"?

FROWNING ON A FAD

Postmaster General Brown does well to decide there shall not be commemorative issues of postage stamps on every conceivable occasion—there have been too many of them in the past few years. One can understand the delight of stamp collectors at frequent new issues—they enlarge collections at slight cost. And as a rule a commemorative stamp is more attractive in appearance than a regular one.

But why should there be a special issue for the 341st anniversary of the discovery of Schuylkill river, instead of the 350th or 400th? Or for any such anniversary?

The 500th or 600th anniversary of the discovery of America might possibly be interpreted as a fitting occasion, for that was an event of world-wide importance. But so far as most of the suggestions for special issues go, they have dealt with local events, or with those of passing interest.

Groups are at work constantly seeking sanction for commemorative stamps. They are active and persistent. Postmaster General Brown may have made some enemies by his decision. On the other hand, the unquestioned majority of our body politic frowns upon fads of this kind.—The Schenectady Gazette.

Bible Thought For Today

Assurance—Therefore I say unto you, What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and they shall have them.—Mark 11:24.

The Way OF THE World

By GROVE PATTERSON

WOMAN'S FIVE-DAY WEEK

One hears that women are going to advocate a five-day week. This will give them one holiday on which they will not be responsible to any man. Sunday will remain a family day as at present. No representative of the new movement has yet explained just what any particular woman contemplates doing on the extra day. There must be some definite purpose behind the idea. Men will do well to take notice and watch carefully.

HELL FADES

Hell is practically out, if we are to believe the Bishop of London, and also Dean Inge of St. Paul's cathedral.

"What is needed is a spiritual conception of eternal life," says the dean. Most of us, not fancying the idea of a material hell, will wish to agree with the dean. He goes on to say, however, that he thinks it is a mistake to banish fear in religion. The dean is going to have a complicated time of it. It is not going to be easy to preserve fear and discontinue hell. Matthew Arnold used to say the world needed sweetness and light. It does—more than it needs fear and punishment.

LITTLE THINGS

There are few big moves, big acts, big occurrences in our lives. We are the products of little moves, little acts, little occurrences. These acts assume, in the long run, great importance for they determine character and success. When we do commit an apparently unimportant act we may solace ourselves that it doesn't amount to much. By itself it does not. But the accumulation of wrong decision quickly mounts up to big figures. We find resistance and discipline broken down because we have taken refuge in the thought that each little act is of small account.

CHANGING HYMNS

A Methodist journal advocates a change in some of the popular hymns and Sunday school songs. Too jazzy, is the verdict. "We have wondered," says the writer, "whether the lilting and syncopated measures of certain of our copyrighted hymns are calculated to induce the fortitude that the great old hymns always encouraged."

Perhaps the revision ought to go further than the Methodist writer would like. He objects to snappy tunes or jazzy measure, and perhaps to the modernism of the words. The hymns that might well be discontinued for the good of the race and advancing civilization are not necessarily modern ones of snappy rhythm. They are the ones that were written by war-loving men and women of our so-called great hymns are marching hymns. They are militaristic. They paint the glories of the martial field and leave impression deep on the minds of thousands of boys and girls. Singing of war, how shall we educate for peace? How shall young people come to put a value on peace when from childhood they are taught to raise their voices in praise of war?

THE CHRISTMAS NECKTIE

I saw a necktie in the store So loud the clerks could hear it roar. I laughed about it and I said: "Will humans wear so bright a red?"

"Will human beings stop to buy So gaudy and so gay a tie?"

"Oh, yes," the willing clerk replied: "That's really lovely when it's tied."

"Some people like that kind of stuff. They can't get neckties loud enough."

"Well, let 'em have 'em! As for me My neckties softer hued must be."

"I can't imagine taste so flat As to select a tie like that."

"What wretched soul exists on earth Who thinks that tie two dollars' worth?"

Thus speaking, on I went my way, And got that tie on Christmas Day.

That monstrous thing was picked for me And hung upon our Christmas tree.

The tie I'd thought they'd never sell, A fond relation thought "just swell."

HELPING PEOPLE

A job is the best thing that one man can give another. A job is better than money, for a pocketbook as deep as Rockefeller's can be emptied in a short time by a jobless army. But a half million men working for Rockefeller can be fed, clothed and sheltered all their lives, and instead of the pocketbook being emptied it may overflow, thus supplying new capital for the employment of more men.

A few writers have lately been saying that "it doesn't pay to work" when one has enough to live on, and that "the time to stop is when the stopping is good." That philosophy reflects a low opinion of business as a career. If it found general acceptance we should soon note that the English and Europeans were no longer sending emissaries to this country to discover the secret of our prosperity.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

A lady from Milwaukee writes me a postmortem letter, going over all the wrongs her husband ever did her—none of them worth mentioning—and winds up by saying that she can't live without him. Ho hum! Can't you just see what the trouble is in that household?

About the surest way to make everybody in your home miserable is hold post-mortems. Some women love to do it. They get some friend, close the door, and pour out their loves and their mistakes and wonder what they might have done that would have nettled them more than what they did. They recite long tales of abject devotion some of which are actually true. It's a great sport.

If there is one thing women rather do than speculate on the future it's level in the past. And to hear them tell it they always get "fed up" on the man and look the front door. They say nothing about trying to invite him to dinner every night for a week and finally giving up in desperation.

The type that tells not only her friends and relatives but the world at large, usually does it through a court. She then gives out letters to prove he USED to love her. Pitying herself she says she has something coming. She has but not what she means. She is willing to take anything from $50,000 up to a million. As a matter of fact any one of these dopes would go through sufferings no end if they could collect $100,000.

Settlement Of French Debt Believed Fair To Both Sides

American Comment Emphasizes Point That Both Countries Are Now Able To Make Plans On Definite Basis

Removal of the last of the important disputes over war debts is commented upon with satisfaction, as approval is given by this country to the terms of settlement with France. American opinion seems to feel that the conditions established are fair to both countries, and assures that plans for future relations may be carried out with greater facility, which this question settled.

"The agreement with France may not be the end," says the OAKLAND TRIBUNE, "though it is apparent the American people hold to the view the negotiations are finished and, unless views are radically changed, will not listen to the overtures of those groups who would have additional amounts wiped off the books. The debtor nations are making steady progress, improving their capacity to pay, and it is a fact that large sums of American money have been invested in foreign bonds. Further talk of debt cancellation may only cause the suspicion that purchasers of these bonds are asking an American leniency to other nations in the interest of these investments."

It is suggested by the ROANOKE WORLD-NEWS that the action by this country "ends a point of controversy between the two nations that might have created unpleasantness at the coming conference on disarmament," and that "this settlement was reached on a basis of the supposed capacity of France to pay, rather than on the total of its borrowings from the United States during the war period." That paper adds: "The American people would have taken more kindly to the arguments as to France's capacity to pay, were it not for the truculent attitude of the French government in the matter of naval disarmament."

"Ratification of the debt settlement, almost four years after it was negotiated," according to the PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN, "is a solution, dictated by reason and common sense, of the most difficult problem presented by the war obligations."

Americans, in reviewing the course of debt negotiations, now brought to an end, are entitled to feel entire satisfaction with the principles which animated our negotiators and the results which have been achieved. But there has been no cancellation in any case of the principal, or of the binding nature of the obligation, even when the case of Austria, a long-term moratorium, was granted on the entire obligation. It has been a wholesome thing for the world, for the debtor nations, that the principle of the sanctity of international obligations has been vindicated throughout.

Pointing out that the United States "borrowed money to make these loans, the ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT asserts that "by making them it greatly aided the nations in war and greatly helped toward the restoration of some of them afterwards. They were valid obligations," continues that paper, "which had to be recognized by us and by them, if international financial relations were to be continued upon a sound basis. The United States went as far as it was possible to make the terms easy, so far that, as here been noted, it did, in fact, cancel no small part of the assumed obligations, and in no case did it insist upon more than the debtor could pay without danger to its internal economy."

That the settlements have been fair is the contention of the SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS and the WHEELING INTELLIGENCER. The ROCHESTER TIMES-UNION states that "the debt commission has gone as fast and as far in liberalizing settlements as public sentiment would permit," and the PORT KANSAS NEWS-SENTINEL and the KANSAS CITY STAR emphasize the point that German reparations more than take care of the French payments to the United States and Great Britain.

FARGO FORUM says: "Just as it was desirable from an economic standpoint to bring about a final repa-arations settlement, it has been desirable, for some time past, to bring about final refunding settlements. Each nation involved is better able to take stock of its finances and to plan its future."

The PORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM offers the verdict on the dispute now settled: "The European grocers who complain that the United States is demanding the last dollar in blood money from France and the Americans who congratulate themselves that our Government is making the French pay in full are equally wrong. On a conservative financing basis, we have forgiven France three-fifths of the sum she owes us."

Taking up the same topic, the SYRACUSE HERALD is emphatic in the statement: "France bore the military brunt of the World War. One-third of her territory was devastated; the total of her dead exceeded 1,600,000. Today, as Senator Smoot, Chairman of the Finance Committee, pointed out, her burden of taxation, chiefly due to the war, is equal to 33 per cent of the national income, as against our own 10 per cent."

"The concessions made in the spirit of friendship and accommodation have popular approval here," according to the NEWARK EVENING NEWS. "France, sorely stricken by the great conflict, turning a third of her national income over to the tax gatherer, can accept the concessions without reproach. The chapter is one the closing of which should bring mutual satisfaction."

"To say that the debts have ceased to be an issue in international politics in the judgment of the HARTFORD COURANT, "would be far from the truth. On the contrary, their justice and wisdom is still a matter of dispute and will be, perhaps, until they are superseded by an arrangement for liquidating all the financial obligations created by the war, reparations as well as debts. With the agreement completed, the time may not be far off when the whole matter will demand resettlement in a new light."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

YES—BUT—

The flying activities of the army will be nurtured by the new Secretary of War—Col. Patrick Hurley.

He is a medal-of-honor veteran of the World War, a westerner, and a devotee of flying.

An editor has remarked: "The Army has changed character during the last few years. It has become a huge university—a frank recognition of the German idea—that an officer is a war engineer—an expert technician rather than a leader and inspirer of soldiers. Only those young men of trained scientific minds, with an avid thirst for mathematics, can ever hope to rise in the new Army. Old army heroes like Generals Chaffee and Crook—and in an older day, Sheridan and Grant—wouldn't know what it was all about."

"The next Napoleon is likely to be a professor of chemistry, with his rimmings—fighting his battle in a sound-proof laboratory—nervous about drafts, and taking his pills and malted milk at regular intervals."

That may be, but every war yet fought has been won in the mud by Infantry.

Mr. Ford didn't make good as a member of Dearborn's board of education. There are heights to which genius itself cannot attain.

Nature is prodigal, but her distribution is faulty. The old South Carolina negro who has 42 children doesn't need any tax exemptions.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

A lady from Milwaukee writes me a postmortem letter, going over all the wrongs her husband ever did her—none of them worth mentioning—and winds up by saying that she can't live without him. Ho hum! Can't you just see what the trouble is in that household?

About the surest way to make everybody in your home miserable is hold post-mortems. Some women love to do it. They get some friend, close the door, and pour out their loves and their mistakes and wonder what they might have done that would have nettled them more than what they did. They recite long tales of abject devotion some of which are actually true. It's a great sport.

If there is one thing women rather do than speculate on the future it's level in the past. And to hear them tell it they always get "fed up" on the man and look the front door. They say nothing about trying to invite him to dinner every night for a week and finally giving up in desperation.

The type that tells not only her friends and relatives but the world at large, usually does it through a court. She then gives out letters to prove he USED to love her. Pitying herself she says she has something coming. She has but not what she means. She is willing to take anything from $50,000 up to a million. As a matter of fact any one of these dopes would go through sufferings no end if they could collect $100,000.

If the braggards do as they say at the post-mortems, refuse the men because they proved worthless why are they boasting that they MIGHT have had them? Not very consistent are they?

One night a married man I know, went to his bedroom for some home-ine and through a small open window, heard his wife and a visiting friend talking at the ungodly hour of 2 a. m. The wife was saying that she married him because she was tired of going to school and didn't want to go to work. She didn't and never had been in love. Some day she will have a fine finish to put to that story but it's probably one she won't be telling. The man has never told that he heard, but he isn't wasting much devotion on her these days.

A woman can dig up more misdeeds, heartaches, operations and love affairs than ten men. With men when it's over it's finished. They forget the color of the next to the last sweetest of their past love affairs they'd be all out of luck. They'd mix up the first and last names.

Edgar Saltus expressed the male attitude when he wrote: "What shall a man say to a woman who has ceased to care for him? It is better to let the subject drop. So W. L. de laide. Afterward he was glad that he had not tried to pursue the conversation further, glad that the dear departed and dispensed with the formality of farewell. And so in the end matters adjusted themselves, as, in the end all matters do."

Women waste so much time digging up the same dead and burying them all over again, season after season.

Wireless War For Europe Is Set For Spring

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON
International News Service Staff

PARIS, Jan. 2.—The man who said the next war will be fought in the air should have specified ether.

It is strongly believed that a wireless war will be declared between Germany and Alsace next spring.

A powerful broadcasting station will be opened near Strasbourg in the spring and the populace is alarmed over reports that Germany intends to put up an even stronger station in the Black Forest.

On both sides of the frontier, apparently, it is feared that the rival station will send propaganda hurtling over the wave lengths.

Strasbourg folk are certain that the Black Forest station will be employed chiefly to turn the Alsatian programs into a series of crackles and buzzes capable of making a receiving set dance with vibrations.

Surgery will soon do its share to help men and women keep their youth, according to Dr. A. L. Sorel, New York surgeon, who recently addressed the Congress of Physicians sitting at Montpelier.

He said that examination of new born children and of men and women old before their time had convinced him that surgical correction of such faults in infancy would prolong many lives. Each of the digestive organs being inter-dependent, they help one another or bother, as the case may be, thus nourishing the patient as it should be nourished or bringing on old age prematurely.

The American surgeon explained to the Congress that very often pathological adhesions between the various organs were the cause of digestive trouble by limiting their free movements. Surgical operations should be performed at an early age to correct these defects.

Dr. Sorel hails a new surgery which will preserve the organs in the way that Nature intended them to be. "Nothing Wasted" will be the motto in the future when even the insignificant appendix will be saved.

The O. G. P. U. or Teheka, came into style as a mysterious and occult influence around Paris when Mr. Gregory Bessedowsky, former charge d'affaires at the Russian Embassy jumped over the wall surrounding this embassy building.

He told police that an agent of the Teheka was inside ready to spirit him back to the homeland, the stones to his feet and dump him into the Volga. The Teheka wanted to get him, he said, because his Red views were a bit off color. Since Mr. Bessedowsky's abrupt departure from the Embassy there have been a number of mysterious slayings in Europe and for each of one the word has been: "Ah-ha, the Teheka!"

Legion Post Here Leads In District

New Castle legionnaires will feel proud of the fact that the Perry S. Gaston post is leading the district in the membership contest among the different posts that is now under way. Chances of the local organization in winning the magnificent trophy to be awarded the winner are reported as excellent, providing the work continues.

Reports indicate the East Liberty post is following New Castle in the second place position.

Two Negroes Under Arrest For Working Short Change Racket

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 2.—Arrest of two negroes who have been working the "short change racket" at a number of places in the state and whose descriptions were sent out on the new state police automatic printer system was announced today by Major C. M. Wilhelm, deputy superintendent of state police.

Description of the two men was first furnished by a filling station attendant at Dauphin where the negroes were successful in getting $5.00 extra in change. A detailed description of the men and the car was sent from the Harrisburg headquarters.

The arrests were made at Ebensburg by members of the state police. The two negroes used a number of aliases and are wanted on a burglary charge in Cambria county.

Hadassah Sabbath To Be Celebrated

Membership Drive Will Be Inaugurated At The Service Friday Evening

The importance of attendance at Hadassah Sabbath which will be fittingly observed Friday evening January 3 at Temple Israel was stressed at the regular monthly meeting of Hadassah by Mrs. L. F. Kohn who presided. Hadassah Sabbath occurs annually during the festival of Chanukah or Reconsideration. It is the time set aside by the temples and synagogues of America and dedicated to the organization whose service is healing.

Hadassah Sabbath always inaugurates the beginning of a membership drive which terminates in a tea, the date of which has not yet been set.

Friday evening the services will be conducted by Rabbi J. B. Menkes of Temple Israel. The Bible reading will be given by Mrs. Elijah Kaplan, "Hadassah in Palestine" and "Hadassah in America" will be the subjects discussed from the pulpit by Miss Flora Snyder of Pittsburgh, a member of national junior Hadassah who spent considerable time in Palestine the past summer.

During the business session of the meeting Monday night reports of officers and chairmen were heard. The outstanding report was the one given by Mrs. Ben Kline on the results of the collection of the Chanukah gelt envelopes from the Jewish religious schools of New Castle. This money will be sent to the school luncheon fund in Palestine to provide hot and nourishing meals to the undernourished children there.

Mrs. Charles Levine announced that the Hadassah annual dance for the benefit of the Hadassah medical organization will be held this year at the Hotel Castleton on Wednesday, January 29.

Mrs. L. F. Kohn reported that the initial meeting of the cultural group will be held the third Saturday afternoon of the month January 18 at the home of Mrs. Charles Levine. Rabbi Menkes will lead in the discussion that day. At the February meeting cultural topics will be presented by Mrs. J. B. Menkes, Mrs. E. Kaplan and Mrs. R. Rubenstein.

After the business of the day was concluded a Chanukah program was presented. The lighting of the candles and blessing were conducted by Mrs. B. Kline; the song of Chanukah was led by Mrs. L. Groden and Mrs. H. Wolf. Reports of conventions were given by Mrs. Marc Levine and Mrs. Jacob Silverman. Piano selections were rendered by Rosina Jebus and Marion Ginsberg. The program closed with the singing of "Ha Tikvah" Zionist song. Mrs. Charles Levine was accompanist.

High I. Q. Holds Good At Any Age

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Abraham Lincoln never heard of an intelligence test; neither did your grandmother, if she died before 1900. The intelligence test was unknown thirty years ago and is almost fashionable now. Like many other "styles" it came from Paris.

No magic about an intelligence test. It merely consists of a number of mental stunts which have been given to a large number of unselected persons of various ages. The particular stunts which the average person 8 years old could do became known as the 8-year test; those which the average 10-year-old could do were called the 10-year-old test. An array of such tests, ranging from a group done by the average adult, were assembled on a printed folder. With this array of mental stunts any individual may be tested by the psychologist. The person who can do on such a series of stunts as well as the average 7-year-old has been found to do is rated as having a mental age of seven years. This person with a mental age of seven may have lived only five years, say, or he may have lived 19 years. (As psychological examiner in the army I found some soldiers with mental ages as low as five and a goodly number under eight.)

Such a test is the one known as the Stanford Revision of the Binet-Simon Test, first developed in Paris by Prof. Binet and Dr. Simon, later revised by Prof. Lewis Terman at Stanford University. If you were to take your child to a psychologist for a mental examination he probably would be given this test. It takes from 30 minutes to an hour to give this test and only one child is tested at a time. Only a trained psychologist will be able to make an accurate rating of your child.

When our country entered the world war our government called upon the psychologists in this country to work out intelligence tests for the American army. It was seen at once that we would not have enough psychologists to examine all of Uncle Sam's army, one man at a time. Hence the group tests were devised, one called Alpha given to those who could read and write, 75 per cent of the army, and another called Beta to those "who could not read an English newspaper nor write a letter home in English," the other 25 per cent. "Army Mental Testing," by Yerkes and Yonkum, will tell you all about it.

During the war and immediately after the war, group tests developed for use on school children. Now most school children of our country are given such a group intelligence test. These group tests do not presume to give mental ratings so accurately as an individual test, but they do surprisingly well. No test measures with the precision of a foot rule.

Red Haired Girls As Home Wreckers

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Red-haired girls lead as home wreckers, Miss Julia Alice Gainey, assistant district attorney in the Bronx, has concluded after hearing the secret woes of 4,000 New York wives.

After red-haired girls come girls with yellow and brunette tresses in the trouble making class, followed closely by financial difficulties, and with liquor bringing up a bad last.

Miss Gainey believes the only cure for errant husbands is more vigorous prosecution — that and making it no longer safe in Canada.

"After all," she said, "home, no matter how humble, is preferable to a jail."

Farmer Found Dead, Live Stock Killed Through Starvation

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 2.—A mute tale of poverty and suffering had been revealed Wednesday with the discovery of the body of William Wells, 65, a farmer of Jackson township, near here.

Wells, found in the bed of his little farm house had been dead a week when the body was discovered. Pneumonia is believed to have been fatal. Wells' dog was dead—its starved body lying at the foot of the bed. A calf was dead in its stall in the barn. The lifeless bodies of several ducks were found in a coop in the barnyard. Only a milk cow, mother of the dead calf, was alive and it was almost crazed with hunger, charging the rescue party which approached it.

Attempt To Thaw Pipes Starts Fire

While attempting to thaw a frozen water pipe at the home of Jody Carter of 305 Bridge street occupants of the home set fire to the house.

Firemen arriving on the scene in answer to an alarm from Box 17 found the house ablaze near the ceiling in a first floor room, the blaze having gotten between the walls and was going up the side of the house beneath the weather boarding. The loss was approximately $50.

NEW GALILEE

Rev. R. R. Merriman and wife attended a young people's convention at Toronto, O.

Willard Hazel is confined to his home with tonsillitis. Mrs. K. Britton has been spending several days with her daughter Mrs. Alford of Freedom, Pa.

Mrs. Lulu Martzoff and sons Harold and Clyde of Harlo on Beaver Falls-Darlington road, have moved to Galilee to live with her son A. K. Martzoff and family.

Miss Elinor Edwards of the Wampum road, who has been in Cleveland for some time is visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter Gray, here.

Funeral services were held for E. S. Short Wednesday afternoon with Rev. Alexander Savage, D. D. in charge. Burial took place in Rocky Spring cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Fey and children have returned home from Beaver Falls after a visit with Mrs. Fey's parents Mr. and Mrs. Rounds.

The many friends here of Mr. and Mrs. Knox Gilkey of Moravia, are sorry to learn of their house burning to the ground Sunday night. The fire they say was caused from a defective chimney.

The White Church congregation of the Pittsburgh district, held an entertainment at Darlington Friday night, which proved very interesting. Three hundred dollars was presented to Dr. Alexander Savage, D. D. He being the eldest pastor in the district, having served his church for more than 53 years.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WHAT, NO CATS?

As he talked Peter climbed straight toward a ripe, red apple he had kept his eye upon ever since his feet had left the ground, and in no time at all he had plucked the apple from its stem and was enjoying juicy bites of the luscious fruit.

"Yum, yum!" said the boy, between mouthfuls. "This is the best apple I ever tasted." And as he munched Peter heard the birds talking about him among themselves. Indeed, the feathered folk were all of a twitter.

"He seems a harmless sort of fellow," chirped one.

"You never can tell," peeped another.

"No use looking for trouble," cheeped a third. "Besides there's nothing to do now but watch and be ready to take to our wings at the first sign of danger. If the stranger's a thief he'll steal the eggs from our nest and we can't help it, to save our feathers."

Peter said never a word, just listened. Suddenly from above his head a voice shrieked out above the twitters:

"Say, boy, do you like cats?" Peter was surprised.

"Why, yes, of course. Why shouldn't I?" demanded Peter.

"No reason at all, I suppose. If you want to," replied Father Bird, rather shortly, and Mother Bird added in an anxious tone:

"You never carry any cats with you, do you?"

"No, I do not," said the boy. "Cats don't like to be handled, and I should expect my eyes to be scratched out if I tried to climb a tree with one in my arms. Besides cats climb so much better than I do, what would be the sense in it, anyhow?"

"What, no cats?" twittered the birds in chorus.

Clara Bow Again Calls Off Date Of Her Wedding

(International News Service)
BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 2.—With the likelihood of having to remain in bed for another two weeks, Clara Bow has postponed her wedding to Harry Richman, New York Night club proprietor. They were to be married Wednesday.

This is the second time that the wedding date has been changed since Clara and Harry announced their engagement last summer. They first planned to be married in October and sail immediately upon a honeymoon trip to Europe. Their work interfered and the date was again set for January 1.

An operation kept the movie actress in the hospital and her physician says it may be another two weeks before she could be up.

Girl Speeder Is Given Fine

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Miss Violet Orme, 18, student at a fashionable finishing school here, led a motorcycle policeman a merry chase Wednesday when the New Year was only a few minutes old and drew the distinction of being the first person arrested here in 1930.

Policeman E. F. Hartman wasn't a bit gallant about it either. The chase was so spirited when he finally caught the girl, he charged her with driving her motor 45 miles an hour.

At the police station Miss Orme, accompanied by a youth and another girl, occupants of the car, was required to put up $25. She had it. Her mother is Mrs. Garder P. Orme, socially prominent here.

CELEBRATORS' SHOTS PASS THROUGH WINDOW

Report made to the police Monday was to the effect that bullets from guns fired by New Year's celebrators Tuesday night, broke a window at the DeCapio home, 306 Home street. They may have endangered the lives of the occupants of the home. Captain Elder, Detective C. G. Logan and Officer Thomas Lynch made the investigation after it had been reported. They found conditions as reported.

May Use Tropics Heat To Warm Up Polar Regions

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2.—How heat from the tropics might some day be utilized to furnish warmth in the polar regions, thousands of icy miles distant, has been shown in theory by Dr. Alexander Silverman, head of the chemistry department at the University of Pittsburgh.

The possibility — "no more preposterous to think of than it was to think of air transportation several decades ago," according to the doctor—is seen in an experiment which he performed with a slender rod of fused quartz.

This rod, six feet long and a half inch in diameter, carried enough heat from a 200-watt tungsten lamp with

Turtle Carries Boy's Initials For 45 Years

Classic Music Losing Hold On German People

By WALTER DIETZEL
Correspondent

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—Classical home music and interest in classical concerts are dying in Germany, the country of Beethoven, Mozart and Haydn. A circular questionnaire of the newspaper "Leipziger Neueste Nachrichten" addressed to the concert agencies of several big cities and to the managers of big municipal orchestras revealed that the number of subscribers to concerts has largely fallen off.

Most of the agencies and orchestra managers attribute this decrease to the general financial plight of the middle classes, an abundance of radio music and the general enthusiasm of the young generation for out-door sports, which has seized girls and boys alike.

Blame On Radio.
"Radio started a music inflation which automatically decreased the value of good classical music as offered in concerts," reads the answer of the Kiel Philharmonic society. "Music is no longer an exceptional sort of festive entertainment. It has been degraded to a common everyday matter-of-fact pleasure of life. Many of our most faithful subscribers canceled their subscriptions, saying that with a radio at home they could dispense with the concerts. Naturally they are mostly aware of the vast difference between music produced in a concert hall and music relayed over the radio."

"The cheap, lower kinds of entertainment like dancing, cinema shows and football games are responsible for the decline of interest in our concerts," complains the concert agency of the city of Barmen-Elberfeld. "We are facing very gloomy prospects and we foresee the time when good home and concert music will be dead."

Home Music Dying.
Home music, formerly practiced in almost every old-time German middle class family, is dying out slowly according to statistics issued by the Musical Teachers' Union of Germany. For instance, one of 10,000 registered music teachers in Berlin only one-fifth earn a living by home lessons. The rest had to accept jobs as musicians in cafe, so as not to die from starvation.

In the piano industry only 50 per cent of the workers are employed at the present, compared to figures in 1925, and both the domestic sale and export have decreased by over 35 per cent against the preceding year. The total export of pianos has likewise decreased by 50 per cent against 1926. While, in 1926, 37,554 pianos were exported to foreign countries, only 19,649 pianos were sent abroad between January and September, 1929. This is due primarily to the

Swiftest Way To End Eczema

Says Alabama Man

There is not an excuse in the world for a person to suffer with fiery Eczema. Yet how many people do you see with ugly skins which spoil their whole appearance!

What you want to do is abolish every trace of eczema with Peterson's Ointment, for years nation-wide famous for speedily ending Eczema.

The first application of Peterson's takes out the inflammation, brings blessed relief from that painful itching.

Repeated use of this powerfully soothing, healing Ointment assures a marvelously smooth, delicate skin.

Mr. A. W. Turner of Birmingham, Ala., writes: "Was troubled for about 2 years with eczema and after I used Peterson's Ointment for about 4 or 5 times, my trouble entirely disappeared."

One application of Peterson's Ointment will stop the burning and itching of Eczema and one 35c box will prove it—all druggists.

Its age is a private matter

It is very difficult to discover, by its appearance, how old a Lincoln is. Lincoln believes in making automobiles so beautiful that they are always modern — so durable that they simply won't wear out. The age of a Lincoln is no one's concern—least of all its owner's. On the boulevard, a Lincoln of last season and the newest model share honors equally with Lincolns years older than either.

So fine is this car that a year or so of use does not perceptibly detract from any of its splendid qualities. Lincoln owners are often men who can, and do, provide the best professional care for their cars. Sometimes such well-kept cars are available at very attractive prices from Lincoln dealers. The wisdom of investing in such a motor car is quite evident, and shrewd buyers are quick to take advantage of the opportunity.

A few such Lincolns are now to be seen on our floor. Every one is in perfect mechanical condition. We are always glad to demonstrate them to you, without the slightest obligation. Drop in today.

exceedingly high tariff barrier Great Britain and Australia have erected against foreign import. The import duty for Great Britain amounts to 33½ per cent, for Australia even to 45 per cent, or 25 pounds sterling per piano as a minimum.

As a result of this situation numerous piano firms have cut down their production to a minimum and six big concerns have formed a merger in order to meet the crisis, which is expected in winter. In spite of the merger several crashes are expected in the piano industry.

MRS. SCHROEDER CONTINUING TO ESCAPE ARREST

the license plates which were on the Chevrolet abandoned here.

The State Police at once communicated with Wheeling police and West Virginia authorities and it was in this way that the search started for the trio.

Today Sergeant Crowley of Troop D, State Police, Butler, said that the stolen Chrysler has not been recovered.

"It is said that persons robbed in the Butler store have identified a photograph of Irene Schroeder" was suggested.

"I wouldn't say it has been" replied Crowley.

No Arrests As Yet.
He said no arrests have been made. District Attorney-elect John S. Powers, it is reported will not call for testimony from Donald Schroeder should the boy's mother be caught and tried. He said yesterday that he considers the testimony valuable but is unwilling, according to the report to ask the child to incriminate his mother.

The fact remains however, that the State Police are doing their utmost in gentle ways to draw every admission from the boy concerning the movements of his mother, Dague, whom Donald calls "Daddy" and his uncle, Tom Crawford. The boy has said his mother shot Paul and divulged the tip about the garage.

William Stewart, a clerk at the Arlington hotel, Butler, yesterday identified Donald at the Colonial hotel as the one with a couple who stayed at the hotel last Thursday night. They registered as Albert Cortwright and family of Dillonvale, Ohio, which is near Bellaire and Wheeling.

Report From Charleston.

For a time last night it was thought that an arrest in the hunt for the murderers of Corporal Brady Paul was imminent. Word from Charleston, W. Va., was to the effect that the officers were closing in on Irene Schroeder and that arrests should come before the night was over. Whether it was just another tip, or whether the officers actually had a suspect cornered is not known, but no arrests were reported by daylight.

Squads of state policemen are working out of Wheeling, and assisting them are state police of West Virginia, peace officers of West Virginia and Ohio and others. The trail now seems to lead east into the cities of Parkersburg, Charleston and Clarksburg, although a close watch is being kept on Wheeling, Benwood and Bellaire. Local officers were in touch with the West Virginia cities by telephone all through the night and about one o'clock this morning it was stated that Ray Schroeder, a brother-in-law of the woman wanted for the crime, had been released from the Bellaire, Ohio, jail. He will be kept under surveillance however, and can be picked up if wanted.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Angert of Butler, were in New Castle on Wednesday, to view the bandit automobile which is being held here. Mr. Angert is the proprietor of the P. H. Butler store in Butler, Pa., who was held up and robbed on December 27 by the killers of Brady Paul.

Believed In Hiding.
Irene Schroeder, Glenn Dague and Tom Crawford, wanted in connection with the slaying of Corporal Brady Paul, state highway patrol, in Butler-New Castle road last Friday have apparently found a hiding place in West Virginia or Ohio as the trio has not been captured.

Donald, four year old son of Irene who claims in statements made to authorities that "my mama shot two state cops" has been removed from the State Police charge at the Colonial hotel. The boy has been technically charged with delinquency in an information made by the State Police.

The lad was taken from the hotel late yesterday afternoon and the move was made secretly. The charge against the boy was made so that the county of Lawrence could legally take care of the lad who was abducted from Bellaire, O., after he had been found by the chief of police.

Mother's Promise Not Kept.
Although yesterday was New Year's day and the woman had planned to kiss on the lad's lips and promised to see him New Year's day she did not keep her word and not realizing that his mother might pay with her life for the crime here, the little lad spent the day playing.

He ran from room to room and the patter of his feet could be heard throughout the building. Now and then he would recite "Humpty, Dumpty, Sat on the Wall," and other verses and his demand that State Police and women attendants read him stories met with a prompt request.

"Strange as it may be the very men who are eager to capture his mother and if necessary requires shoot, have become attached to the boy and there is little he asks that is not granted.

For instance yesterday the little lad said that he had been promised a rabbit and he hadn't got it. This was told to Jack Crowl, proprietor of the Colonial hotel and he got busy and as a result "Dorie" as he is called was given a white tame rabbit.

Hunt Garage.
As the result of one of Donald's purported stories it is said that the police are trying to find the proprietor of an Ohio garage who may have aided the slayers in their flight. Donald named the town, it is said, where the Chrysler was stored and a Pontiac secured.

So far the Chrysler and proprietor have not been found. It is pointed out the trio fled from Toledo in a Pontiac and when the murder occurred here had a Chevrolet. Later they stole the Chrysler then secured a Pontiac. The Pontiac they now have may be the original Toledo Pontiac car.

This would give support to the suspicion that the garage has been used by the trio directly or indirectly to help them in their criminal work and as soon as the police are able to find the proprietor it is probable that his connection, if any, will be cleared up.

Persons employed in the store in the Butler robbery came here yesterday to see the boy in the hope of identifying him. Sheriff Reynolds took the couple to the State Police headquarters here but the man and woman were not permitted to see the lad.

The sheriff communicated with Captain Mauk at Butler and said the couple was here but after the conversation the sheriff explained to the couple that the State Police advised against their seeing "Donnie" and they returned to Butler.

COAST STEAMER RADIOS FOR HELP

Broken Steering Gear On 8,800 Ton Steamer In Pacific

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 2.—Crippled by a broken steering gear and with its afterhold filling with water, the 8,800 ton steamer California of the William Diamond Line today radioed for help, 800 miles off the Washington coast, according to advices received here by the Chamber of Commerce Marine department.

The steamer sailed from Astoria, Columbia River, Dec. 30, bound for Yokohama.

The United States coast guard cutter Snohomish is speeding to the assistance of the disabled ship. According to local officials of the company the steamer carries a crew of 37 men in addition to Captain N. Johnson and the ship has passenger accommodations, but whether there are passengers aboard is not known.

Justices Given Reappointments

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Jan. 2.—Governor John S. Fisher today announced the reappointment of nine justices of the peace and the filling of two other similar vacancies. They included:

B. C. Laughlin of Hookstown, Hookstown Borough, Beaver county. John Boyce of Clearfield, Borough of Clearfield, Clearfield county, vice Joseph Johns, deceased. George Morgan of Wheatland, Borough of Wheatland, Mercer county, reappointment.

Bank Bandit Held

Fearing mob violence, jail officials have rushed Elmer Grayson, Indianapolis, Ind., bank robber, above, to Nashville, Tenn., following his capture at Bowling Green, Ky. Grayson, according to police, confessed he was one of the three men who held up a bank at Oakland, Ky. He denies shooting Robert Kirby, Smiths Grove bank president, who was killed when he tried to waylay the bandit trio.

ASSASSIN LYING IN WAIT, SHOOT SAMUEL MILLER

victim's nose. There were bullet holes on the left side near the ear, on the chin and in the front of the neck and on the back of the neck. The bullets had all passed entirely through the victim's head and neck. One of them had severed the carotid artery. This was the bullet that had caused death.

When it was demonstrated that there were no bullets in the body Ellwood City police and state police made a search of the ground where the victim was found. In the pool of blood which was found under where his head had lain, a steel jacketed .32 calibre bullet was found. The bullet was a little flattened.

Assassins Laid in Wait.

Further investigation by Ellwood police, County Detective Fleming and state police at the scene of the shooting showed that Miller had evidently been shot by an assassin who laid in wait for him at his garage. The man is believed to have known that Miller was out in his car last night and would return to the garage.

The indications were that Miller had put his car in the garage, had closed one door and was in the act of closing the second door when he was shot down. The second door was partly open. It is believed that the assassin had been hiding around the corner of the garage, and that when Miller was in the act of closing the garage door he was shot. It is probable that Miller did not see the assassin at all, the indications being that he had been shot from behind. The streets are unpaved at the spot where the body was found. There were no doubt tracks left in the mud, but as a number of people had been at the spot before the officers arrived it was impossible to tell which tracks might have been made by the assassin. There were tracks near the corner of the garage, where it is likely the assassin stood.

Makes New Year's Call.

Investigations last night and today showed that Miller boarded with Nick Lombardo on Beaver street. About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Miller who was off work on account of New Year's, went with his boarding boss, Nick Lombardo, and two other men to the home of Jim Carni. So far as can be learned the visit was in the nature of a New Year's call.

The men, it is claimed, stayed at Carni's chatting until about 4:30 when one of the men who was with Miller, and who lived out of Ellwood City said that he would have to go as it was about time to take his train. Miller and the other men who had accompanied him from his boarding house said that they would see him off. They all went to the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad station. After Miller's friend had taken the train Miller and the other man who was with him started back to Carni's. When they left later Carni did not know where they were going, but supposed that they were going back to Miller's boarding house. Movements of Miller from this time on until his lifeless body was found by the garage, are uncertain. Officials are endeavoring to check up, but have not yet completed the work to their satisfaction.

Heard Shots.

The officials have found at least three men who heard shots. William McElhany, who lives near the scene of the shooting, says that he heard three shots, but does not know whether or not any more were fired. Ray Hoover of Keystone way says that he heard one shot, and Ben Stark, who was with John Evans when the body was found, says that he heard one shot.

Investigation shows that probably five shots were fired. There is a hole in the wall of the garage and another mark near by that looks as though it were made by a bullet. Wounds on Miller show that at least three of the bullets struck him. Had they been lead bullets, some of them would likely have remained in the head or neck, but being steel they passed clear through.

Excellent Employee.

W. G. Duncan of the Ellwood City Water company, under whom Miller worked, says that he was an excellent employee. He was an Italian by birth and was a cripple, having lost one of his legs. He used an artificial leg on the stump of the left leg which was missing at the knee. Duncan says that Miller was steady in his habits and a man whose associations were good. He was also a man of pleasant and amiable disposition. Men who worked under him all appeared to like him. His long years of service with the Ellwood City Water company is a good recommendation as to his ability and habits.

So far as Duncan knows, Miller had no enemies certainly none whom he would suspect of wanting to take his life. Miller, it is understood, had been married, but little is known of his married life by the water company.

GERMANS TO GIVE AID TO TOURISTS

(International News Service)
BERLIN, Jan. 2.—Special windows for foreigners, at which information can be given in various languages, have been installed in the main post-office in the Spandauer Strasse and in the main telegraph office. The beginning of the next tourist season will bring a similar convenience in the new postoffice, Unter den Linden.

The example set by the German capital has also been followed now by the main postoffice in Breslau, and windows for foreigners will soon be opened in the postoffices in the Silesian spas of Altheide, Kudowa and Landeck.

Work In the Open!

THIS is the season of the year when the deadly carbon monoxide gas gets in its work. The National Safety Council calls attention to the fact that already reports are coming in of carbon monoxide fatalities. In a majority of these cases the conditions are practically the same. A man goes into his garage to do some work on his car. The winter air is cold and he starts the engine with his garage doors closed. Then it is that the deadly gas gets in its work. The fumes work fast and strike without warning. Always make it a rule to have your garage door wide open (and windows, too, if you are doing very much inside work on your car). If you take this precaution there is not much chance of your being a victim of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Even France's Language Now Turns American

Many English Words and Expression Are Found In Use

FRENCH COIFFEUR LIVES IN GLASS HOME

By ALICE LANGELEIR International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Jan. 2.—Even the good old French language is turning American, complains G. D., writing in "L'Intransigeant". He is referring to the many English words and expressions that are now being used by modern French men and women.

On many bills-of-fare in the French restaurants one reads ham and eggs, kippered herring, corned beef, sweet corn, Quaker oats, pickles, plum pudding and cake (pronounced kak).

The smart Frenchman drinks cocktails (pronounced coctails), sherry, American grogs and the cakewalk, fox-trots, blues and shimmies. After dinner he goes to a music-hall and sees the clowns, cowboys, sketches and stunts.

Week-end trips with box-calf shoes, rowing, footing, pull-overs, sweaters, waterproofs, plaids, skunks and breeches are on the lips of every chic Parisian of the day. He also goes to his "tailor", taking the "lift" to the second floor and for shirts choose Oxford, Cambridge or poplin.

His modern wife no longer speaks of her "saute des baines", but takes a shower in her bathroom and then goes to her 5 o'clock tea while her maid cleans the house with a vacuum-cleaner.

People who live in glass houses—manipulate scissors and curling irons. A celebrated Parisian coiffeur is now living in a house entirely constructed of glass and crystal, especially built for him.

"Everybody calls me an 'original' and is making fun of me," says the hair-dresser, "but I just wanted something different. I have a horror of things made in series and adore ideas, things, beds and even coffins pure as crystal."

The house is of pure glass with columns of crystal reflecting a beautiful purple light, the balconies of massive glass, a charming little bar with walls of colored glass. The bed of the coiffeur is also of the same material and will become his last resting place for he has made arrangements to have it transported to the magnificent tomb constructed for him by the sculptor Dunikowski.

If the ladies have come back to the city from their holiday haunts with a fine coat of tan, the men can boast beautiful beards which will keep them company during the cooler winter months.

Americans especially, seem to have gone in for this revived fashion for chin growth and are sporting the French beard in more than 57 varieties. Beards are short and long, pointed in true Gallic fashion, soft and silk or bristly.

Some of them have a beautiful permanent wave; others are brown and flowing. A square-cut beard one has recently caused some little excitement among the Montparnasse colony.

Signs of an extremely severe winter are to be seen in the double provision of wax which is being made by the bees of the province of Doubs, according to one of the peasants. And never before, he adds, has he seen such a profusion of berries on the winter-bearing trees, winter food for the birds.

Homesteaders Get 4 Million Acres Of U. S. Land In 1929

Over 30,000 People Filed Claims In Past Year, Figures Show

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The day of the pioneering homesteader still is here.

Citizens of the United States, seeking more room or urged on by the adventuring of wrestling with new land, filed patents on 4,612,722 acres of public domain during 1929.

The general land office revealed in its annual report that it does a land office business in fact as well as in theory. Over 30,000 persons filed claims on land during the year and in addition the organization collected over $6,000,000 according to the government from public land activities.

Total receipts under the mineral leasing act, which included oil lands, aggregated $3,994,878. The low price of oil during the year cut this income somewhat, but receipts from other sources were increased.

Among the other outstanding accomplishments of the general land office during the year was the cancellation of 8,906 permits to prospect for oil under the Hoover oil conservation program. Leases resulting from discovery of oil or coal on the public domain were granted to 145 persons.

Surveys for the service surveyed over 3,500,000 acres during the year and made examinations in 15,948 cases to determine whether the leasing and homesteading laws were being observed.

There may be spring where Byrd and his comrades are, but there will be no tulips through which they may tip-toe.—The Des Moines Tribune-Capital.

Japan To Open Shimizu Tunnel By Year's End

Elaborate Ceremonies Planned For Greatest Railway Tunnel In Orient

UNDER CONSTRUCTION FOR PAST TEN YEARS

(International News Service)

TOKYO, Jan. 2.—Opening of the Shimizu tunnel which will be the greatest of its kind in the Orient when completed, will be celebrated with elaborate ceremonies by the government, railways and railway ministry before the end of the year.

The famous Tanna tunnel near Atami, which has been under construction for more than 10 years, is now expected to be opened before the end of 1931.

Five Miles Long
The Shimizu tunnel is about five miles long. Work has been carried on from both ends, and 5,158 yards have now been excavated from the northern end and 4,618 from the southern end. Only slightly more than 600 yards remain to be tunnelled.

The principal feature of the opening ceremony will be the blowing out of the last thin layer of earth between the two tunnels. This will be done by the Minister of Railways, Mr. Yoku Egi, by pressing a button on his desk in Tokyo. The event will be the first of its kind in Japan and is causing much interest in the vernacular papers.

The shortening of time which this tunnel will bring between Tokyo and the northwest of Japan is expected to have a substantial effect on the price of rice produced on the great plain. Several express trains, six ordinary trains and several fast freights will be run daily through the new tunnel.

Engineering Feat
The Tanna tunnel on the Tokaido line near Gotemba is the most difficult engineering feat ever attempted by Japanese railway engineers.

The length is also about five miles, but the volcanic nature of the mountains through which it runs, the numerous hot springs which have been encountered, the pressure of volcanic steam and other sources, and the depth of the tunnel below the ground have rendered boring extremely difficult and slow.

The total expense of excavating this tunnel is estimated at more than $10,000,000 and it has already cost the lives of 30 men.

Cauffiel Ousted As Mayor, Refuses To Give Up Post

Johnstown Mayor Now In Jail Refuses To Quit; Judge Orders Office Vacated

(International News Service)
JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 2.—Joseph Cauffiel, who just started a sentence in the county jail at Ebensburg, the county seat, will not resign as mayor of Johnstown in spite of his unwillingness to relinquish his duties.

President Judge John E. Evans so ruled in an opinion filed in Cambria county court, following the controversy over whether the former mayor could continue in office after undergoing sentence for misconduct in that office.

Cauffiel, contending that he had been made the victim of a plot, had planned to conduct the mayoralty business from the jail and refused to resign the office or appoint an acting mayor to serve during his jail sentence of from two to three years.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

That downcast, depressed look upon the faces of a few of our friends today may not be any sickness. Perhaps they are alumni of the University of Pittsburgh and if they are, they can be excused from humming, "Am I Blue." The trimming they took out on the coast yesterday was more than a defeat, it was a debacle, and the boys will probably come back by freight.

It also means that Ted Marlin will be solvent for a time for he thought enough of the Californians to place a little sugar on their chances.

And before this column gets a line older, let this apology be written, I couldn't get there. "There" being the Y. W. C. A. and the time being Wednesday afternoon. They had an Open House down there and Mrs. John Elliott was nice enough to invite me down. But murder cases continue even on New Years Day and the anticipated pleasure of swinging a cup of tea with the girls had to be sacrificed to the more doubtful pleasure of talking to a lot of policemen.

Did a little roaming up Croton avenue last night to see some of the Christmas lighting effects and found that Dr. Cleland, one who attracted one's attentions for blocks. The doctor had his tree out on the balcony of the second floor, with flashing light bulbs. The effect was beautiful, and it seems a pity that such decorations aren't left up the year round.

From the new bridge the view of the tree was especially good, the colored lights reflecting out on the water of the stream. It also gave a fellow a night view of the rubbish on the other side of the creek bank. Some day perhaps those banks will be cleaned off, some day.

This is a great age. Here in New Castle it was dark, but 3000 miles away two football teams were struggling through the January weather to establish which of them was the better one. Through the sunshine and the darkness, over mountains and through canyons, travelling with the speed of light came the description of the game and while it was a mild winter evening here in the east, it was a typical California day in Pasadena. Hope your radio was in good shape.

Lawrence County got one break out of the game. This lad McDermott, of Ellwood City, who used to do tricks opposing high school lines, seemed to be romping all over the lot out in California. Several times the radio announcer picked him out for special attention, and these notices must have given Peck Lee a lot of enjoyment. Peck taught the boy his first football.

"It won't be long now," is the theme of some of the county officers. District Attorney Bryan, Sheriff Reynolds and County Detective Fleming are completing their terms of office on Monday and the new regime goes in.

After caring for 5000 men and women who have violated the law, it is going to be just a trifle strange for Sheriff Buck Reynolds for a while when he resumes the less exciting vocations of peace.

Second Baptist Closes Church Year

Reports From Financial Committee Show Church To Be In Excellent Condition

The trustees of the Second Baptist church met Tuesday evening to hear the final reports of the financial standing of the church for the year 1929. The report shows that $2,711.30 had been collected by the trustees and a miscellaneous collection of $290 brought the total to $3,001.30. All church debts for the year have been cancelled, with a substantial fund left in the treasury.

After receiving reports officers were elected for 1930, with the result that the present incumbents were retained in their respective offices. Minor amendments were made to fill the vacancy caused on the board of trustees by the death of Charles Profit.

Alimony works out all right. The less a woman deserves it, the more it is worth to be rid of her.

Mothers, Mix This At Home For a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It guarantees to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Man Who Scribbles While Talking Not Victim Of Single Track Mind

(International News Service)
ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 2.—Men who draw queer figures on a sheet of paper while talking, be it either over an executive's death or from the most obscure telephone pay station in town should read this.

Men who are not possessed of an inclination to scribble in queer form have some bad news coming to them should they read further.

For, straight from the knowledge of outstanding physicians, comes the message that a man who draws the queer designs while in conversation is more intelligent than his brother who heeds conversation only. The man who scribbles has a double-track brain while the man who leaves his pencil to itself is possessed of only a one-track mind.

Interest in the subject was aroused by a recent presentation by President Hoover of an autographed slip of paper to a friend. Upon the paper were numerous figures and designs the president had drawn while in conversation. This naturally brought forth the controversy "What does it all mean?"

A Keen Mind.
Dr. Newdigate M. Owensby prominent Atlanta psychiatrist contends that a keen mind is in evidence when a man starts drawing queer shapes and figures.

"A man who does this," Dr. Owensby said, "is usually keen and alert, it shows that he is capable of thinking along more paths than one. He has the power to carry on an intelligent conversation and think of other business matters at the same time."

"President Hoover is easily capable of thinking along more lines than one," Dr. Owensby said. "He is possessed with a double-track mind and it is possible for a man of his ability to have a triple-track mind. He is capable of performing several feats in his mind simultaneously."

Asked if he thought a person accustomed to this practice gives more thought to what he is thinking about than what he is talking about Dr. Owensby said:

"It is possible that the thought revolving in his mind is more important to him. If this is not true it is a safe guess to say that he is not interested in the subject under discussion."

Sign of Impatience.
"Men often lapse into this practice when in a great hurry to finish a conversation. It is a sign of impatience in some instances—a show of desire to switch off to another topic."

"Of course there are times when we lapse into the practice momentarily only to drop our pencil after a second or so and resume the conversation. This can be traced to the fact that a separate thought from the topic of conversation entered the brain at the moment and called for consideration before being dismissed."

"Yes," he continued, "it is possible for a man to possess a triple-track brain but the person is keen indeed who is possessed of even one of the double track nature."

Christmas tree decorations are made in large quantities at Sonneberg, Germany. These find their way to all parts of the world.

Police Co-operate In Hunt For Slayers

Early Telegram Was Probably Clue That Started West Virginia Search

Chief of Police C. C. Horner, and the police department, although little known in the efforts to apprehend the slayers of Corporal Brady Paul, have been constantly engaged in an effort to locate and apprehend the killers and in reality had one of the first actual tips as to the identity of the alleged slayers of Paul, which information was turned over to the state police authorities.

As soon as the license number of the car abandoned on Adams street was known, Chief Horner got in touch with Cleveland and found that the license on the car had been issued in Toledo.

He then communicated with Toledo at 5 p. m., the evening of the murder and had information concerning the car and the people believed to be in it.

The message received read as follows: License C 77-435, motor 230-432, stolen Toledo, December 23, by man and woman, who committed holdup. Man, 35, five feet eight, 190, red hair, small mustache, black coat, gray hat, woman about 25, dark clothes and hat, had four-year-old child. Man may be J. G. Crawford, Wheeling, W. Va. We are having investigation made at Wheeling. Advise if car in your possession. L. J. Haas, chief of police.

State Department Chaplain W. E. Bramble, of Pittsburgh, will act as the installing officer and will induct the various officers into office.

SUPPOSED CHRISTMAS PRESENT, DEADLY BOMB

(International News Service)
SEAT PLEASANT, Md., Jan. 2.—Police today will question a middle-aged rejected suitor in connection with the bomb outrage at the home of John S. Hall, a grave digger, which resulted in the death of Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, 18-year-old expectant mother and serious injury to six members of the Hall family.

The bomb, loaded with dynamite and nails, was concealed as a Christmas present, and the Hall family gathered around it anticipating a glad surprise. It exploded soon as the lid of the box was lifted, with a detonation that could be heard a mile.

Mrs. Brady, to whom the package was addressed, was horribly mutilated and died shortly after at Casualty hospital in Washington.

Those injured were:
Mrs. Nora Hall, 45, Mrs. Brady's mother, who lost an eye and suffered injuries to her abdomen.

Leslie Hall, 16, a brother, who lost two fingers and was badly cut about the face.

Mrs. Margaret Bromley, 86, Mrs. Brady's grandmother, concussion of the brain and shock.

Thomas Hall, 8, cut hands.

Dorothy Hall, 4, injured head, face and body.

Samuel Hall, 19 months, facial, head and body injuries similar to those suffered by Dorothy.

Three members of the family escaped. The father was at work in Mt. Olivet cemetery; Norris Hall, a son, 20, was also at work; and Roger Hall, another son, was in the back yard.

Mrs. Hall opened the package with the family gathered around her. It had been previously left at the door step of a neighbor, who brought it to the Hall home.

The explosion hurled the family in every direction and the kitchen was wrecked. The package, which looked as if it might contain candy, was wrapped in brown paper and had Christmas seals and Yule Tide greetings pasted on it.

An investigation by local police caused them to begin a search for the man who is known to have proposed to Naomi Hall two years ago. She refused him and last June married Herman Brady, a 22 year old farmer of this vicinity.

Accompanist Is Highly Recommended

Prof. Maurice Lewis of Pittsburgh, adjudicator of music at the recent Eisteddfod held in the First Congregational church, was enthusiastic in his remarks concerning Mrs. John M. Evans, the accompanist of the Eisteddfod.

He stated that she was one of the most brilliant accompanists and pianists that he had heard in many a day and that the success of the affair was in no small degree attributable to her playing. He also commented on the playing of her little son Thomas, who took part in the violin solo competition, stating that the boy had a brilliant future.

Mrs. Evans is also the possessor of a fine contralto voice and is in much demand in musical events. Mrs. Evans comes of a musical family; her father Prof. Thomas Hopkins, of Arlington avenue, having been director of the Emmanuel Baptist choir for years and her brother, David Hopkins, being a leading harpist of this district.

Report O'Neill Is Seriously Ill

(International News Service)
CANNES, France, Jan. 2.—James E. O'Neill, American oil magnate who has been living in France since the beginning of the United States Government's investigations into the Teapot Dome Oil scandal more than four years ago, today was reported seriously ill in his villa here.

O'Neill and H. M. Blackmer refused to attend a grand jury investigation in Washington in 1925, where evidence tending to show that former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Hill accepted a bribe in the form of liberty bonds in connection with the leasing of government oil lands, was sought.

"Can't Be Done" Is Not Found In Film Dictionary

By FREDERIC A. CHASE
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 2.—Surprise is a lost emotion to the motion picture property man, and "It can't be done," is not in their vocabulary.

It is said of the property directors of Hollywood that if a producer requested the original apple Eve gave to Adam, the property men wouldn't lift an eyebrow, but would answer: "Okay. When will you need it?"

Charles Sewell, head of Paramount studio's property department, got a tough assignment the other day. He was asked to supply thirty Cossack saddles. Hollywood he ransacked in vain, and then used the telegraph wires for a day or two without success.

Finally, as he was on the verge of sending to Russia for them, an inspiration struck him as he watched a trick horseman perform at a circus. Sewell met the rider and he left the tent, and learned that the man was a former captain in the Czar's cavalry and that, following the revolution, he had come to America with forty pieces of cavalry equipment, including Cossack saddles.

He had stored them in New York and a week after the interview they were in Hollywood.

Sometimes the property men are not so lucky.

A few weeks ago, Sewell had to find a pre-war London taxi-cab. In vain he searched the nation, but finally sent to London.

It doesn't do the "prop" man to try to get by with anything. Each film goes under the scrutiny of millions of critical eyes, and if there is something in it, from the smallest property to the showiest uniform, that is not correct in point of the time and place of the setting, the studio is bound to hear of it from the fans.

Directors, too, have their suppressed desires to be movie actors. Some of them can't suppress them, and often times you will see the director of a picture playing the part of the serving man, or the policeman, or most any character that has a small but important part in the film, where he steps into the limelight for a moment and then is gone.

During the making of "Wings," William Wellman, one of the most ardent realists of them all, was not satisfied with the way a player was doing an important death scene. Finally, he called the makeup man, and did the scene himself.

Perhaps you remember that part of the picture in which an aviator is shown in his death agonies, after being mortally wounded in an aerial fight.

"In Legion of the Condemned," Wellman was again unable to suppress his desire and played the part of the messenger who reached Gary Cooper too late with Fay Wray's message.

Pomona Officers Are Installed Wednesday

Grangers Of The County Participate In The Meeting
New Years Day

Recently elected officers of Lawrence County Pomona Grange were installed Wednesday afternoon at Liberty Grange Hall in the presence of a large and representative group of members of the granges of Lawrence county.

The officers installed will serve during the coming two years. The installation took place at the afternoon session and Scott Clark of Ohio, past National Deputy, was the installing officer.

At the morning session, routine business was transacted and reports of officers heard.

It was decided to dispense with the February meeting of the Pomona Grange because of the fact that a conference of the lecturers of the granges is to be held February 4.

One of the outstanding matters of business of the meeting Wednesday was the approval of a number of resolutions setting forth the high esteem in which David F. Kyle, retiring Pomona Grange Master, is held, and commending the excellent work that he had done for the Grange during the three terms of six years that he had served as master of Pomona Grange.

The officers installed were: Master—W. S. Pullerton; Overseer, Everett Boak; Lecturer—Mrs. J. O. Cameron; Steward—Francis McCracken; Assistant Steward—Clarence McFarland; Chaplain—Rev. Ross M. Haverfield; Treasurer—Laurie; Range Secretary—Mrs. C. M. Hartzell; Gatekeeper—John Benson; Ceres—Mrs. Scott Munnell; Pomona—Mrs. Frank Jenkins; Flora—Mrs. J. A. Young; Lady Assistant—Mrs. Eva Lindsay; Executive Committee—A. H. Pullerton, J. A. Cox and John Bronson.

Seven Day Revival To Be Held At Bethel

Beginning this evening at 7:30, a revival service, lasting seven days, will be held in Bethel A. M. E. church. Rev. C. D. Henderson, pastor of the Union Baptist church, will deliver a special message each night.

A chorus of forty voices will sing negro folk songs at each service, this within itself, will be a special feature. The prayer service committee will be composed of members of the Union Baptist and Bethel A. M. E. churches. A great deal of interest is being manifested by the two churches.

Dr. Henderson's subject this evening will be, "The First Cake" or "Religion and Hard Times."

Cauffiel Out Of Mayor Job

Prison Term Ends Service,
At Johnstown, Ruling
Of Judge

JOHNSTOWN, Jan. 2. — Joseph Cauffiel is no longer mayor of Johnstown, President Judge John E. Evans ruled in an opinion filed Wednesday in the Cambria county court at Ebensburg.

The court's opinion definitely disposed of Cauffiel's claim that he was still mayor and his insistence that he would continue to act as such even though now serving two years in the county jail, was handed down by Judge Evans in disposing of a petition filed by City Solicitor Tillman K. Saylor.

The solicitor's petition, asking the court for a writ of peremptory mandamus against City Treasurer W. Winson Davis, directing that Davis pay city warrants signed by Councilman Calvin Overdorf, acting mayor, and City Controller W. H. Dawson, was granted and the costs assessed against the city.

The court also holds in its opinion that it has the inherent right, by reason of the provisions of the state constitution, as part of the sentence inflicted upon Mayor Cauffiel following conviction of misdemeanor in office, extortion, perjury, conspiracy and keeping a gambling house, to remove him from office.

Wheeling District Attorney Is Hurt

(International News Service)
WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 2.—Assistant Federal District Attorney William C. Howard, 31, is reported critically injured today following a New Year's Day automobile accident in which six machines figured.

A hit-and-run driver whose car sideswiped one driven by former municipal Judge Alan Robinson is blamed by police for the accident which occurred along the highway at Pleasant Valley, near here.

The other cars crashed into Robinson's when it was struck by the first car.

EXPLAINS REPORT
MADE BY TWO BOYS
Pat Kearns, well known employee of the Penn-Ohio Street Railway System, made a report to the police relative to the statement made by two boys concerning the assistance they gave in helping get into a car on South Jefferson street, which they thought might have been the car stolen Saturday night from that street.

According to Mr. Kearns, he was unable to get into his machine and he and Earl Hogue secured the two boys in question to get under the car, push up the floorboards and get in and open the door, so that they could use the machine.

They paid the boys fifty cents for their services. They were unable to get into the machine, because of the fact that they had lost the keys according to Mr. Kearns.

The monkey needn't feel offended. People object to all of their relatives.

Four Dead, Fifty-Nine In Hospitals In New York From Drinking Bad Liquor

NEW YEAR'S EVE WORST IN HISTORY

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Four persons were dead and 59 in hospitals in Greater New York area as a result of poison holiday liquor, an unofficial checkup revealed today.

The fervor of the Metropolis' New Year's celebration was further illustrated by police statistics showing two killings, four shootings, twenty stabbings, 40 false alarms and unnumbered street brawls during the last 48 hours.

Veteran police officers declared today that this year's New Year's festival of revelry was one of the most riotous in the city's history.

Paradoxically, however, the number of arrests for drunkenness was the smallest in years, but, no doubt, the special holiday consideration shown by police to the revelers.

Bellevue hospital and Kings county hospital received the greatest number of alcoholic cases. At Bellevue, treatment was given to 35 persons, several of whom were reported to be in a critical condition. Five other cases were said to be acute and the rest mild. One of the Bellevue cases was a young woman, 20 years old, removed from a well known night club during the height of the New Year's Eve revelry.

Scout Leaders Set Fete Date

Friday, January 10, Chosen As Time; Will Invite Wives And Friends

There will be scout talk flying thick and fast at the annual banquet and program of the Lawrence County Scout Leaders' association for which Friday, January 10 was chosen as the date today. Selection of the banquet place has not been made.

Wives of the scout leaders and other friends of the leaders' organization will be present that evening as special guests, headquarters announced. An attendance of over 100 persons is expected.

Irvin Ropp, president of the association will act as general chairman of arrangements and head of the entertainment committee. William Ayres will head the menu committee while Ed Schmid, Ron McCoy and Perry Uber will assist Ropp in making general arrangements.

A meeting of the chairman of the committees to make definite plans for the evening will be held at scout headquarters on Tuesday evening, January 7, at 7:30.

Wampum Woman Narrowly Escapes Injury By Bullet

Stray Shot Of Celebrator Shatters Top Of Bed Post Last Night

WAMPUM, Pa., Jan. 2.—A stray forty-four calibre steel jacketed bullet, evidently fired by some belated New Year's reveler about midnight, passed over the prostrate form of Mrs. F. M. Davis as she laid sleeping in her bed, in the first floor room of their apartment in the former Arlington Hotel building, shattered the bed-post and lodged in the top of the door leading into the kitchen of the apartment.

According to Mr. Davis, it was evidently an accident and must have been fired from Main street, diagonally across the street without intention of hitting the Arlington Hotel building, which is located, corner of Railroad street and Main street.

It shattered the window of the bedroom, also the top of the bed post, one piece of which fell on the bed, and the other on the floor.

Had Mrs. Davis, who is an invalid and bed fast, been sleeping sitting up supported by pillows, as she is often required to do by condition of her health, the bullet would have just grazed the top of her head, or might have wounded her.

The daughter, Miss Olive Davis, who also occupies the same apartment was also awakened by the crash. The glass of the window was scattered all over the floor of the room.

Economist Asserts 1930 Should Show Prosperity Trend

(International News Service) Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale economist Wednesday found good promises of continued big business profits for 1930, despite the recent jolt of a $30,000,000 paper value loss in securities.

Speaking of the program of the American association for the advancement of science here, Prof. Fisher said the intensive application of science and invention to business, a new appreciation of big business and the more helpful attitude of labor should dispel the fears of the pessimist.

The stock market crash was attributed to too high brokers' loans, to the fact that too many people were in debt and to unsound financing of sound business prospects.

Important Factor
Prof. Fisher regards Prohibition as an important factor in the anticipation of future business stability.

"Prohibition," he said, "is a highly controversial subject, but not on the economic side. What ever else we may think of Prohibition, there is no gainsaying its economic value, although we may of course, differ as to how great its economic value is."

The scientists' committee of 100 for the study of the salary question, was advised by Edward A. Filene, millionaire Boston merchant, that colleges must raise salaries where they lose the best research professors to big business. Many already have deserted the campus for the high salaries of business and industry, he said in a message read before the salary committee.

Several Members Of Family Badly Mangled By Bomb

Several Members Of Family Living At Seat Pleasant, Md., Severely Injured

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Several members of a family, adults and children, were badly mangled Wednesday in an explosion at their home at Seat Pleasant, Md., just beyond the District line on the route to Chesapeake Beach resort.

Casualty hospital physicians reported a woman was just brought there badly mangled. At Sibley hospital the superintendent reported "several badly cut persons had been admitted."

The home was located on Comedy road. Neighbors told International News Service the explosion was caused by a bomb sent to one of the children in the family as a Christmas present. They said they believed the family was named Hall.

Man Soon Able To Change His Color

(International News Service) SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 2.—Man soon will be able to change from black to white and vice versa over a period of five generations.

Such was the forecast today of Dr. Yusaburo Noguchi of Japan, eminent biologist, on his return from Brazil, where he studied savage races in the interior of that country. Dr. Noguchi, speaking through an interpreter, smiled at reports printed in New York newspapers which declared he can change a man's stature, color and racial characteristics.

"No I cannot perform these miracles," he said. "But, in my research I have found that human beings are ruled by an unseen force, as intangible as electricity, which can change their entire status in life."

A group of men and women, all of different races, could produce a race with any physical characteristics desired, the scientists declared, adding that this would be accomplished through science, climate, diet and the constant exertion of mental forces of all those involved in the experiment.

Dr. Noguchi, in discussing his expedition in Brazil, declared that the types of savage races he studied showed a finer character, stronger mind and healthier body than the so-called civilized people, all because their lives were more balanced.

One way to win is to look like a winner

THE man who scorns good grooming makes a big mistake. Torn fingernails, cracked and grimy hands, a careless shave or an unclean skin, spoil a man's chances for success.

A clean healthy appearance is worth everything. And you need only one simple, old fashioned familiar preparation to have them all. "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly. You'll probably find it right in your bathroom. If not, get a tube or jar from the nearest store.

To keep the hands in good condition, scrub with a stiff brush and soapy water. Then apply "Vaseline" Jelly liberally and massage your hands (exactly as if you were washing them). Work the Jelly into the base of the nails. Then wipe off and wash quickly. Your hands will emerge looking clean and fresh, like the hands of an executive, not a day laborer.

In the morning apply a film of "Vaseline" Jelly to the face before lathering. It not only gives you a clean, close, comfortable shave, but it cleanses the skin. Improves its texture. Try these two simple things.

Funeral Held For Grove City Woman

for girls and infants

(Second Floor)

—A new hat—or two!

—The prospect of a new semester becomes more alluring, as she anticipates the admiring glances of her friends upon her new felt hat, in one of the popular crayon shades... from Strauss-Hirshberg's, of course. Some of the new types here feature straw combinations, with a slant toward spring. At $5.00 and $6.50.

—Classroom frocks

—These youthful knitted frocks will be exactly right for classroom and sports... with their nonchalant suede belts, or gallant little jackets. In one-piece, two-piece, and three-piece styles, these dusky display tweedish patterns of tone... deep browns, soft greens, blues and subdued reds. Sizes 16 to 20, at $16.75 and $19.50.

—Dress-up frocks, too!

—If she's wise, the college-bent maid will indulge her wish for several of these frocks. The cost is really not beyond her own pin-money... and their chic will be such a satisfaction on her shopping trips, at sorority teas, and even for dinners and informal dancing. In prints, chiffon, and silk crepes... fashioned upon princess-like curves. At $15.00 and $25.00.

—These clever, gay

"Dons-Alls"—for lounging

—With amusing printed pantaloons and harmonizing smock, the girl at school will be smartly clad for study, or for an after-light-bell feast. Being made by Nelly Don, they are original both in fabric and cut... and they can be depended upon to wear well and come smiling out of the college laundry. Pantaloons come at $2.95 and $3.95, the matching smocks at $2.95 and $3.95. And specially designed ensembles of smock and trousers for as little as $5.00.

—And exquisite new "Vanity Fair" undies

—Made of shimmering, soft silk-ense, these underthings are delectably smart and give a surprising amount of wear. In pink and adoree.

Bande bloomers, $3.00
Plain bloomers, $3.00
Yoke "Vanties", $2.75
Vests, at $2.00

Pupil Of Clemenceau's Teaching Days Gives Anecdotes Of Tiger

(International News Service) SEAVIEW, Wash., Jan. 2.—Memories of school days under the tutelage of the late George Clemenceau, while the "Tiger" was a political exile in America were recalled here by Dr. Alfred C. Kinney, 80, who conducts a small office in his home.

"In 1870, while attending Bellevue hospital medical college at New York for a short time I was a student of Clemenceau, who was at that time a teacher of French in a Connecticut young women's seminary," Dr. Kinney said.

"My eldest brother, Dr. August C. Kinney, now deceased, was also attending Bellevue hospital medical college, and during that time he placed frequent visits to see his wife he became acquainted with Clemenceau and learned that he was an eminent physician and well versed in some subjects not then known in this country.

Medical Class
"My brother formed an arrangement with Clemenceau to take a class of medical students for a small fee from each, to which he gave instructions in microscopic anatomy and laboratory methods which consisted of 20 lessons. This class was quite successful and another group of students anxious to receive this instruction organized a second class, which he also taught."

"I was a member of the second class. We took but part of the course, for during that time the Franco-German war had reached a point where Napoleon III's regime fell, removing all political disabilities of Clemenceau.

He immediately sold his laboratory to my brother and returned to France.

"It seems that Clemenceau came to America because his political views were opposed to Napoleon's and he became an exile. Whether it was forced or voluntary, I do not know. He came to this country as a poor man and was obliged to eke out an existence by teaching. He was a very capable and positive instructor. He used the English language quite fluently and expressively and his students grasped the substance of his teaching. He was the best instructor I ever had and I had many in those days."

"I know of no bad habit that he had."

"My brother was with him socially while at New York and considered him a very upright and likeable gentleman, and thought a great deal of him."

Dignified Teacher

"In his class work with us Clemenceau was dignified, simple and earnest. His subject was familiar to him and he gave us instruction as though it slipped from his finger tips. One of the class said: 'He hands it to us just like driving a nail sent home, and if you would turn the timber over you would find the nails clinched on the other side.'

"At the close of one session he gave us a little talk, expressing his admiration of the American form of government, saying, 'his ambition was to help institute such a form of government in France, modified to accommodate the French temperament. He admired our Lincoln, saying, 'When I think of him I lift my hat.'"

"Of Andrew Jackson, Phil Kearney,

Stonewall Jackson, Daniel Webster and others he spoke highly.

"Of Bonaparte he spoke feelingly, admiring him as a fighter, his energy and executive ability, but said he was not a man, adding his ambition was selfish, he wanted the people to love him with no love in return."

More Commendation On State Convention Held Here Recently

Letters of appreciation for the manner in which New Castle handled the state convention of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association continue to come in to Dr. C. C. Green, superintendent of schools. The following two letters arrived today.

Harrisburg, Pa.,
December 30, 1929.
Dr. C. C. Green,
Superintendent of Schools,
New Castle, Pa.
Dear Dr. Green:

I want to express my appreciation of the fine courtesies and the effective courtesies shown by you, your school directors, teachers and citizens of New Castle at the recent conference of the P. S. E. A. held at New Castle.

Everybody acted as if they were glad to have us with them and we enjoyed it and appreciated it.

I wish you would convey to the members of your board and other interested parties my appreciation of their fine spirit as hosts.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN A. H. KEITH,
State Supt. of Public Instruction.

West Chester, Pa.,
December 30, 1929.
Supt. Clyde C. Green,
New Castle, Pa.

My Dear Supt. Green:

I want to tell you how much I appreciate the fine treatment that was accorded to us during the P. S. E. A. convention. It seems to me that everything was done to make our stay a very pleasant one, and I know that back of all of this there was a tremendous amount of work done by you and your committee. The exhibit itself was well worth our going to New Castle.

Yours very sincerely,
NORMAN W. CAMERON,
President, West Chester State Teachers' College.

Dr. C. C. Green,
Administration Building,
New Castle, Pennsylvania.

My Dear Doctor Green:

We had a great Convention in your city last week and its success is traceable very largely to you and your associates. You did everything humanly possible to make the Convention a success and your efforts were crowned with success. Even the weatherman cooperated. My hat is off to you and the teachers of New Castle and Lawrence County.

I desire to commend the work of all of your Chairmen of Committees for their work touched mine very closely. I want to commend, also, all the members of their Committees and their splendid work although they did not come so much into the limelight.

Everyone did his work well and in good spirit. It is small wonder, therefore, that the Committee on Resolutions prepared the following resolution expressing the appreciation of our entire Association of your work and that of your associates:

"Our appreciation is extended to the Superintendent, Principals, and teachers of the New Castle Public Schools and to the New Castle Board of Education for the unusually fine exhibit of public school work which it has been our privilege to observe this week. Such an exhibit is possible only through wise leadership of Superintendent C. C. Green, the officers of the school district, and the most loyal cooperation and painstaking efforts of the members of the teaching force. We wish to extend our thanks also to the Superintendent, Principals, and teachers of the New Castle Schools for the entertainment and many courtesies which we have received."

Yours very truly,
GEORGE A. SIGMAN,

Man Injured By Falling Off Truck In Wurtemberg

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 2.—Joe Dubrovich of Koppel is in the local hospital in a serious condition as the result of a fall this morning.

He was riding to work on the Wurtemberg road sitting in the rear of a Ford truck. The car skidded and Dubrovich was thrown out and suffered a bad scalp wound when he struck the pavement. His condition is considered serious, and relatives in Koppel have been notified.

C. Of C. Directors
Will Hold Session

Directors of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce will hold their regular meeting at The Castleton on Friday at noon, headquarters announced today.

Business of an important nature will be discussed and the attendance of every member is urged.

Lon Chaney, king of makeup among motion picture stars, has a right to wear this uniform, for he's a member of the Marine Corps reserve. Lon likes beer, spinach, sardine sandwiches, H. L. Mencken, fishing, comic cartoons, caps and to be more, or less let alone.

MR. GEORGE MILLER

"Neuritis and rheumatism were the bane of my life for many years," said Mr. George Miller, 235 Paul street, Mount Washington, Pittsburgh, Pa. "I sought desperately for a remedy but found none. The pain was frightful and my muscles and joints became so sore and stiff that I was practically helpless. I could not raise my arms above my head for days at a time. My kidneys were weak and bladder actions disturbed my sleep."

"I reasoned that what Konjola had done for others, it would do for me. After I had secured several bottles and started the treatment, my illness began to disappear. In a short time all pain left me and the swelling in my joints was no longer apparent. My kidneys became normal again and I slept regularly. I feel that the world should know of a medicine that relieved rheumatism and neuritis of years standing, in a few short weeks."

Konjola is sold in New Castle at Love & McGowan drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

New York, Dec. 31, 1929

Dr. C. C. Green,
Superintendent of Schools,
New Castle, Pa.

My Dear Doctor Green:

Just an acknowledgment of my appreciation and that of my house for the splendid manner in which you and your able assistants looked after the welfare of all attending the P. S. E. A. meeting.

Permit me to commend you and your teachers on the educational exhibit in the Senior High School. I was especially interested in the geography and arithmetic exhibits. Our Mr. Dempsey of the New York Office, (Educational Director for Rand-McNally's) was greatly interested in the display of arithmetic work.

Wishing you a happy and prosperous New Year, I am,

Cordially yours,
C. L. WAGONER,
Rand McNally and Co.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 30, 1929

Dr. Clyde C. C. Green,
Superintendent of Schools,
New Castle, Pa.

Dear Dr. Green:

Now that I am back at my desk after a most enjoyable two days' visit to your city, I want to congratulate you on the splendid way in which you and your able assistants handled the big convention just ended. As far as I could hear there were only words of commendation from everyone and it is a very difficult thing to please everybody.

Especially should the chairman of your Committee on Housing, Frank L. Orth, be congratulated as his job reminded me of my own troubles as Graduate Manager of Athletics at Lafayette College a few years ago when the annual Lehigh-Lafayette game was to be played. There were upwards of 16,000 applications for reserved seats "on or near the fifty yard line," when he had a total seating capacity of only 10,000.

I imagine you and your associates are more than glad that the session is now over but you certainly can feel justly proud of the splendid way in which every detail was attended to. It was an inspiring sight on Friday last to see 1900 people fed a splendid luncheon in so short a time with the hot foods really hot and the ice cream really cold, and the after dinner speaker was one of the best I have heard in a long time.

With all good wishes for 1930 and hoping to have the pleasure of seeing you some time early in the year.

Yours very truly,
GEORGE A. SIGMAN,
The John C. Winston Co.

Senior Scouts
Sew Garments

That, among other things, the Senior Girl Scout troop of this city is quite accomplished in the art of sewing is shown by a dozen articles of clothing donated by this troop to the Associated Charities on East street.

Pretty little dresses for children around the ages of three or four years and underwear to match have been made by the girls in this troop, to be given to unfortunate children in the city. The work was done at home and during the meetings of the members.

Ten Boys Flee
Detention Home

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2.—Police today are searching for 10 boys who escaped from the juvenile detention rooms here yesterday 10 minutes or so after they had been arrested on charges of purse-snatching and automobile stealing.

The gang had been rounded up over a period of 10 days, and the final member of the group had been taken into custody for only a few hours when they made their escape.

Allegheny County
To Spend Big Sum

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2.—A building program calling for the expenditure of $35,000,000 is on the lists of Allegheny county business for 1930, according to County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

That sum will be spent for roads, bridges and public buildings and will provide employment for hundreds of men, Armstrong said.

Four Accomplishments In Hoover's Regime In Ten Months Outstanding

Agricultural Relief Is One Of Chief Outstanding Things Hoover Has Done

Arranging For Big Naval Conference In London
Another Important Step

By GEORGE E. DURNO
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—At the outset of the New Year, and looking backward over the year 1929, four accomplishments stand out prominently in the first ten months of the Hoover administration.

Of outstanding vital interest to the general public, perhaps, is the final evolution of a definite scheme of agricultural relief, involving the manipulation of a $500,000,000 fund by a permanent, and carefully selected Federal Farm Board.

Reassuringly affecting the whole nation were the series of business conferences instituted by President Hoover which are generally conceded to have restored public confidence in the wake of the November stock market drive.

Big Naval Conference
And, by way of international contribution, this administration set the ball rolling which will culminate this month in London in another big conference of the major world powers looking to further reduction of naval armaments and additional guarantees of continued peace.

These four achievements, it was conceded generally, have been the outstanding contributions to national advancement since Herbert Hoover took office last March.

There have been others of considerable importance, such as inauguration of a new oil conservation policy and a rather new departure in the way of inquiry by special commission into every major problem as it develops. On the other hand, Mr. Hoover has not found his baptismal months without obstacles.

Sleepless Nights
Two topics combine to give the president most of his sleepless nights, if any prohibition and tariff.

On the score of the "noble experiment," he just now is facing the greatest outburst of national debate that has developed since the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act were placed on the statute books in an effort to make the nation dry.

Mr. Hoover and his law enforcement fact-finding commission are being beleaguered by all factions and the reconvening of Congress next Monday promises to bring forth a flood of oratory, recrimination and suggestion that may lead almost anywhere.

Not Thornless Path
Nor is the president treading a thornless path in his efforts to secure revision of the tariff. That was one of the two tasks he assigned the special session of Congress he called together last April, but the New Year and the regular session finds the problem still hopelessly tangled in factionalism and sectional differences. Observers contend it is one of the most stubborn tariff fights in history.

On the whole, however, President Hoover has expressed himself as satisfied with the progress its administration has made. If nothing more, he believes he had laid the foundation for many of the ambitious projects his engineering mind has evolved.

Historic Coin Is Found In State

(International News Service)
LIVINGSTON, Pa., Jan. 2.—An historic relic which brings to mind the days following the Civil war was discovered recently by N. B. Petty of Lehigh, when he found a campaign coin bearing the busts of Seymour and Blair. The coin, which bore the date of 1868, was found at the race track of the local fair grounds.

On the back of the relic is the slogan: "Central amnesty, uniform currency, equal taxes, equal rights."

At the time the coin was issued, Horatio Seymour, then governor of New York state, was opposed to General U. S. Grant and was defeated for the presidency of the United States. With him on the Democratic ticket, seeking an office in the New Hampshire state legislature, was William Henry Blair, who was elected.

Just how the piece of copper reached this part of Pennsylvania will probably never be known, but a theory has been advanced that it was carried to the race track by the racing gentry as a lucky piece back in the days when horse racing was America's greatest sport.

LONG LIFE ON THE FARM

Remarkable longevity was disclosed at the recent dinner of the Williston, England, agricultural association. Benjamin Boalch, who headed the list of aged farm hands, was 86. The other winners were 85 and 84. All the nine entrants in the class for aged women were 80 years or more. Harriet Milton, the first prize winner, was 87½, and the youngest aspirant was 81. The ages of the nine totaled 750 years.

Still, you can't expect peace and order in the best of penitentiaries if you persist in sending such tough people there.

Mothers... Watch Children's COLDS

COMMON head colds often "settle" in throat and chest where they may become dangerous. Don't take a chance—at the first sniffle rub on Children's Musterole once every hour for five hours.

Children's Musterole is just good old Musterole, you have known so long, in milder form. Working like the trained masseur, this famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain.

Keep full strength Musterole on hand, for adults and the milder—Children's Musterole for little tots. All druggists.

For That Cough Which Weakens

THE longer it hangs on, the harder it is to get rid of a stubborn cough. Sleepless nights and loss of strength and appetite often result.

Eckman's Alternative, with its many years of successful use, may be needed to free you from a persistent cough. It is the calcium chloride preparation, without alcohol or narcotics, which tones up the system and restores strength while checking the cough. Your druggist always has it.

Curtis Plane Wins Big Award

Guggenheim Foundations Bestows $100,000 Prize In Safe Aircraft Contest

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The Curtis Stanger biplane has been declared winner of the first prize of $100,000 in the international safe aircraft competition held by the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics.

Formal announcement that the Curtis plane had triumphed over its closest rival, the British Handley-Page entry, was made by Captain E. S. Land, vice-president of the fund.

The Curtis machine is a cabin ship with a Curtiss air-cooled motor, wing slots, wing flaps and a "floating alleron" at the tip of the lower wing. The British makers of the Handley-Page, contending that the wing slot constituted an infringement on the patent for this device held by them, has entered suit here against the Curtiss company.

Safety tests including maintenance of controlled flight at not more than 45 miles an hour, stopping within 100 feet of the spot where it first touched the ground, taking off with a maximum run of 300 feet, several gliding tests and flying for five minutes while the pilot held both hands off the controls.

Roosevelt Scored For Conditions In New York Prisons

(International News Service)
ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Prison riots and overcrowded conditions in the state's insane hospitals Wednesday was laid at the door of Governor Roosevelt by Republican leaders of the legislature in a formal statement outlining the G. O. P. legislative program.

Prison administration in some respects has broken down in New York state the Republicans charged.

"Whatever assistance the legislature can give this year to correct a most serious situation in the prisons will be given and whatever funds are necessary to restore public morale will be provided," the statement asserted.

Fire Fighting Costly Luxury To Englishman

BRACKLEY, England, Jan. 2.—Fire fighting is a hobby and an expensive one in this tiny village.

The Brackley fire brigade is purely an honorary and independent band of fire fighters, for the town council has never given it any money.

Thirty-two years ago they bought their present fire engine, but it is about to fall apart. The brigade, despite the council's refusal of money for a new engine, is going to buy one itself.

The fire fighters have saved $2,000 from charity fetes, and each of the members is donating approximately $200 out of his own pocket for the purchase of the new engine. Although this will not pay the entire price of the engine, three of the firefighters are underwriting the remainder. The fire brigade drills three times a week and receives no pay.

Candy Not Forbidden TO THE FAT

No need to deny yourself all good things because you are overweight. Modern physicians do not advise starvation. They know the dangers of it. They know that people who are over-fat have generally an under-active gland. So they supply the factor, for lack of which too much food goes to fat.

This modern method is the basis of Marmola prescription tablets. These tablets were perfected, and are prepared, by a famous medical laboratory. A book in each box states the formula and explains the reasons for results.

For 22 years Marmola has held the top place in its field. Millions of boxes have been used in fighting fat. The people who gained new youth and beauty, new health and vigor, have told others. Now the results are seen everywhere. Excess fat has largely disappeared.

There is usually no excuse for an abnormal figure and the dangers which go with it. If the cause is an under-active gland, Marmola is the right way to combat it. For 22 years, countless people have been learning what it does.

Go try Marmola and learn what they have learned. Read the book in the box, then do as directed. Take four tablets a day. When you see that results are coming, go on and complete them. You owe that to your future. Start today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 a box. Any druggist who is out will gladly order for you.

State Has 411 Plane Pilots With License

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Pennsylvania on September 30, the latest date for which figures are available, had 411 officially licensed airplane pilots and 324 licensed aircraft, the aeronautics branch of the commerce department announces.

The Keystone State ranked fifth of the forty-eight states in the number of licensed pilots and in the number of licensed planes.

New York follows second with 799; Texas third with 468; Illinois fourth with 443 and Pennsylvania fifth. In the matter of licensed planes, New York ranks first in the nation with 772, followed in order by California with 694; Illinois with 361; Ohio with 326 and Pennsylvania with 324.

Of the 411 licensed pilots in the Keystone State, 177 have transport licenses; 11 industrial licenses and 156 private plane licenses.

A total of 329 airplane mechanics in Pennsylvania had been licensed by the commerce department on September 30, and 83 planes had been assigned identification numbers by the department.

Council Opposes Petting Parties In Dravosburg, Pa.

(International News Service)
DRAVOSBURG, Pa., Jan. 2.—It's all very sad—very sad indeed, but this quiet little village nestling along the Monongahela river is not going to be a haven for young couples seeking a place in which to do a bit of gentle petting as it was hoped 'twould be.

And it is all because the village council has not the sympathy for lovers, the eyes for romance like that of Police Chief C. A. Livingston.

Chief Livingston, recalling the days when he was young, had made the innocent remark that "petters" would not be disturbed in Dravosburg. A newspaper reporter, liking the idea, gave the remark considerable publicity in the neighboring metropolitan papers.

Council, amazed that the village should be the refuge of modern young folks out for an evening of "whoopie" said "No"—and emphatic "No."

Chief Livingston said, "I must have been misunderstood."

Rear Admiral Claims Naval Propagandist Has Been Misunderstood And Maligned

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Rear Admiral Bradley E. Fiske will introduce William B. Shearer, accused naval propagandist, to the audience at Carnegie hall here next Sunday night when the latter speaks on the "Inside story of ten years of international intrigue against U. S. sea power," it was announced today.

Admiral Fiske in announcing his intention to introduce the naval lobbyist, said that he considered Shearer as a man not only misunderstood but maligned.

"I have looked into his alleged activities at Geneva," said the admiral, "and I find that he was only doing what the government was trying to do. The only people he was opposing were the British."

Coolidge Given Low Auto Number

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 2.—With the advent of the new year, former President Calvin Coolidge is sporting a low registration number for his sedan. When the car appeared on Main street Wednesday morning it bore the number 6979. Last year, the Coolidge car was assigned the number 284420. This however, was because his auto was not registered until April, a few weeks after returning from Washington.

The Coolidge automobile is a second hand sedan which he used when president and acquired when it was traded in for a new car for his successor, President Hoover.

Love Story By Napoleon Just Found In Paris

FRENCH FRANC IS NOW VALUED UNIT

By ROBERT W. THOMPSON, International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Jan. 2.—Napoleon Bonaparte was the author of a sentimental love story, "Clisson and Eugenie," the manuscript of which has just been discovered.

The book was written in the year 1795, after an unhappy romance with the daughter of a merchant.

Introduced by his brother Jerome to the wealthy Clary family in Marseilles, Napoleon fell violently in love with one of the daughters, Eugenie Desree. The romance did not last long, because Napoleon was suddenly recalled to Paris.

It was while longing for the Clary girl, whom he would not propose to because of his poverty at the time, that Napoleon wrote "Clisson and Eugenie" in the nature of an autobiography.

American packers are being accused of having put bad pork and beans into cans that were shipped to soldiers in France.

The accusation is made by a French newspaper in all seriousness. After the Armistice the French government purchased large quantities of supplies left by the American Expeditionary Force.

Known as the "Stocks Americans" the huge amount of equipment and quartermaster stores appears inexhaustible, and the very name is a joke with the French.

A Bordeaux merchant, nevertheless, recently offered 25,000 cans of Army beans for $20. The lot was resold several times until it reached $240.

Then the police stepped in, opened a few cans and reported that the contents were unmentionable.

The newspaper blames American packers for what was in the cans but fails to emphasize that pork and beans shipped to the A. E. F. would be between eleven and twelve years old today.

The French franc is reported to have evolved from a slight coin to the best-covered money in the world. After varying fortunes during successive post-war governments the franc is now guaranteed by forty-six per cent gold and several billions in foreign money, held by the Bank of France.

As a result of this situation a movement has sprung up to put Paris alongside London and New York as a money market, at least to make it the "capital for capital" on the Continent.

To do this, one writer points out, it is necessary to re-organize the market for long-term credits and revise the tax schedule of foreign securities.

Both questions are expected to be discussed in Parliament during the current session.

The works of the late Jack London are growing in popularity in France from year to year, says Mrs. Charnian London who was called "my mate woman" by her late author husband.

Mrs. London is in Paris to arrange for the dramatization of Jack London's book "Lost Face," which is to be played at the Grand Guignol Theatre.

"During my husband's lifetime, France did not take particular interest in his books, but since the war his rise into popularity has been nothing less than phenomenal.

"The younger generation is eagerly reading his tales, and many are being run as serials in the newspapers," Mrs. London said.

Jazz Music By Negro Band In Paris In 1840

By ALICE LANGELEIR, International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Jan. 2.—What will these French discover next? One of them, Max Dorian of "Le Petit Journal," has just announced that jazz music is as old as the hills—and then some.

To be precise, he proves that a group of negroes from America first came over to London as far back as 1840 and played jazz on banjos, Jewish harps, castanets, fiddles and what-nots and then brought it over to Paris that same year where they met with great success. There were also drums and a triangle which made beacoup noise and the players swayed, jiggled and joined in with a verse or two just as they do up on Montmartre hill today.

Monsieur Dorian even has an engraving of one of the negro jazz players of this Afro-American group and printed below it is the following announcement:

"The principal attraction of the visiting troop was above all its presentation of the scenes of colonial manners which represented the ardent dances and the songs which were the epic of the slaves, the complaints, the elegies, the fights, the sufferings and loves of these people."

Sometimes it pays to whistle at your work. Ask Sidney Rayner, American ex-showcard writer, of New Orleans, who has signed a two-year contract with the Opera Comique, goal of many singers.

According to his story, Rayner swung a wicked brush and could turn out department store price tags and sale ads faster than a button factory turns out buttons.

What Rayner wrote was somebody else's idea but the execution was all his own. Showcard writing became such a mechanical process with him that he took to whistling and singing while at work.

"Why don't you hire a hall?" his fellow showcard writers demanded sarcastically. Instead of becoming offended Rayner consulted a singing teacher.

For the last three years he has been in Italy taking vocal lessons to the time of a metronome instead of a showcard writer's brush.

After hearing a few notes from Rayner's tenor voice the director of the Opera Comique asked the ex-showcard writer to sign on the dotted line and, according to Rayner, this is the best bit of open flourishing he has done in his life.

"Why don't I hire a hall?" Rayner now demands of his former brothers in showcard writing. "Because some one has hired it for me."

AN AMERICAN CITIZEN'S OATH.

Editor News: During the Civil War, John Brown, who had four sons fighting for our union while walking on the public highway of Roane county, West Virginia, was accosted by the well known class of people called "bush-whackers."

They demanded him to take his oath to support the southern Confederacy. He said: "No I can not do that which is against my principles." They insisted that he either do that or take the "cold lead" which their muskets would give him. He said: "No. I have four sons fighting for our union and when I came to this country I took my oath to support it." I am now 70 years old and I will not purger my oath. I am living for a better world than this where I expect to go if you send me. You may not be long behind me; but there will be no place for you where I go."

The "bush-whacker" shouldered his musket, walked up to John Brown and said: "You are too old and brave a man to shoot." you are just on the wrong side. Go home and do not travel in the bushes." John Brown's answer was: "I travel where my necessary business takes me which is on the public highway. I do not live by traveling in the 'bushes.'"

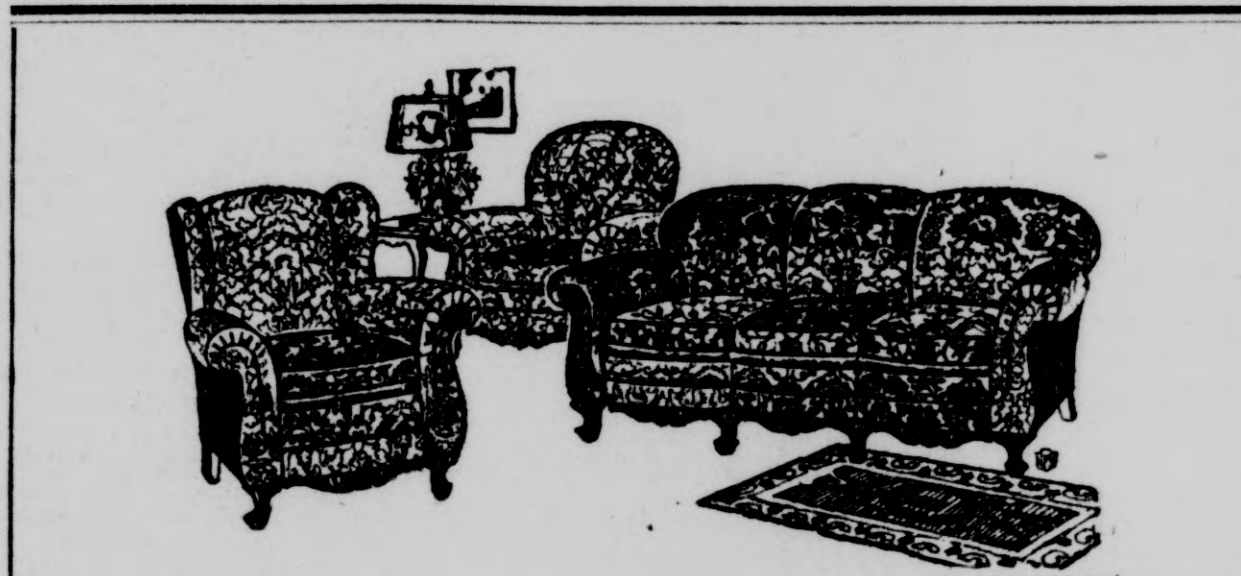

This is a true incident and shows up a rare strength of character of which we are in much need at the present time. It is worth publishing.

Per Capita Fire Loss Here During 1929 Extremely Low

New Castle's fire loss during the year of 1929, was extremely low. Fire Chief Charles H. Lynn reported today, the city having been extremely fortunate in escaping any serious conflagrations during the year.

The total fire loss for the year was approximately $85,000. Chief Lynn stated, or an average of about $160 per capita.

There were 387 alarms sounded during the year, 34 of which were found to have been false. In a great many other cases, needless alarms were sounded, such as bonfires, grass fires and the like.

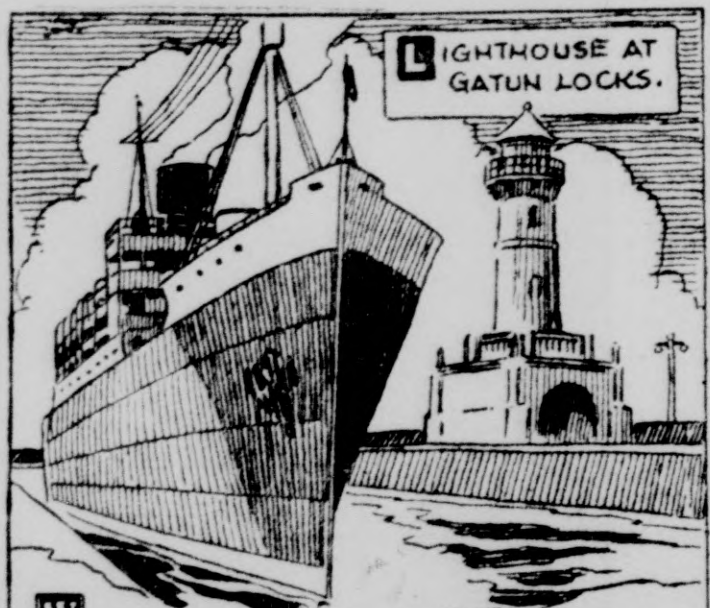

Altogether the year was a most fortunate one for New Castle citizens as far as fire losses were concerned and speaks well of the cooperation of New Castle citizens in taking precautions to prevent fires.

The Story Of The Panama Canal
Part 22—The Canal In Operation

WHEN THE PANAMA CANAL WAS COMPLETED, THE AMERICAN PUBLIC WAS EAGER TO SEE IF IT WOULD PROVE A FINANCIAL SUCCESS. ON AUGUST 15, 1914, THE GREAT WATERWAY WAS OPENED TO COMMERCIAL TRAFFIC. AT THE SAME TIME CAME THE OUTBREAK OF THE WORLD WAR, SERIOUSLY AFFECTING COMMERCE.

IN 1915, 1,075 SHIPS PASSED THROUGH THE CANAL, AND THE TOLLS AMOUNTED TO $4,365,550. IN 1926, 5,197 SHIPS (NOT INCLUDING 534 GOVERNMENT VESSELS) USED THE CANAL AND PAID $22,931,055 IN TOLLS.

AT BOTH THE PACIFIC AND CARIBBEAN ENTRANCES ARE DRYDOCKS AND POUNDRIES WHERE VESSELS CAN PUT IN FOR REPAIRS, WHILE A HUGE COMMISSARY DEPARTMENT OFFERS FOOD, FUEL AND WHATEVER EQUIPMENT MIGHT BE NEEDED. THIS AUXILIARY BUSINESS RUNS INTO MILLIONS ANNUALLY.

DURING THE WORLD WAR, ALLIED VESSELS, BEARING PRECIOUS SUPPLIES FOR THE ARMIES IN EUROPE, WERE RUSHED THROUGH THE CANAL WITH THE GREATEST SPEED POSSIBLE. SHIPS NEEDING REPAIRS WERE MET OFFSHORE BY GANGS OF MECHANICS AND WORKMEN, WHO FIXED THE TROUBLE WHILE THE VESSEL WAS PROCEEDING THROUGH THE CANAL.

Boxers Not After Titles Any More, They Want Money

What Good Does It Do To Be Champion? Fighters Ask, Is Sensible Question

BOXING GAME IS VERY PECULIAR

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service, Sports Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—They said boxing was riding to a fall five years ago when any pair of female impersonators could sell the house out to $50,000. Today, the second of the year, it is more than obvious that the tide is over and the fall an established fact, a fall so heavy that the carcase isn't even bouncing. The answer isn't that money is lacking. It is the fighters who are lacking. They have so little that all the history of boxing has known to representation so object.

They can't fight. They won't even try and I can understand that, too. If they try too hard they might get to be champions and, under present conditions, no misfortune could be greater. Barring the heavyweight championship, the average title isn't worth a dollar ninety in the open market. Why? Because, tolerant as he is, the mugg in the third row balcony never forgives a champion who can't fight and since almost none of them can fight, non-championship mediocrity is greatly to be preferred. The man who stays in this class makes more money; he gets less abuse.

"What," asks a pained and mystified observer, "has become of the flyweight elimination tournament at Madison Square Garden?" He was all excited. He seemed to think that something had become of the flyweight elimination tournament. The mystery, as a matter of fact, is not concerned with the question, where did the flyweight tournament go? There is a bigger, more significant issue at stake, namely, why did the flyweight tournament start?

It drew 6,000 spectators and a net of about $17,000 on opening night, whereupon it borrowed an idea from vaudeville and opened and closed in one.

Schwartz Has Retired.
The only thing proved by the event was that there was no money in being flyweight champion, so the assembled bright young men decided they would be something else. One of them, Izzy Schwartz, even went so far as to retire from boxing rather than fight for the rudimentary fun of the thing.

The condition is typical of nearly every class. There is no big name-weight champion and nobody is breaking a social engagement to get the distinction, either. The New York commission has brightly solved a part of the problem by doing away with the two "junior" divisions. It was getting nowhere with elimination tournaments of one kind and another, so it did the next best thing. It began eliminating the divisions and I'm sure none would complain very bitterly if the commission forgot to stop.

The commission also has deputized Jimmy Slattery and Lou Scozzia to fight for the vacant light heavyweight title and nobody is greatly excited about that, either, although this is hardly a matter for calmness and self-restraint. They are the best and I make this statement in perfect faith. There is no such thing as the best lightweight. They are all bad.

What Good Is Title?
What great good has the lightweight title done Sammy Mandell? As a perennial contender, he probably would have made more money. What did the welterweight title do to Joe Dundee and, strictly speaking, what did Joe Dundee do to the welterweight title? His successor, Jackie Fields, is starting out nicely, too. That is, he starts out but mostly he is thrown out.

Look at the middleweight champion, Mickie Walker. He couldn't make the weight with one foot in the air but the rest of them are so bad that nobody can make him prove it. This is just another fighting championship that doesn't pay ten cents on the dollar. Why do you suppose there wasn't a title fight held in the Garden for a year preceding the Bass-Morgan affair? The reasons are two in number: (1) Title fights didn't pay the promoter; (2) they didn't pay the fighters.

The more I think of it, the more I'm convinced that McLarin has the right idea. He doesn't demand the championship; he demands the money.

ALL-EAST TEAM TAKES VICTORY

All-American Aggregation From East Downs Western Team In Benefit Game 19-7

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 2.—Having thoroughly tamed a team of western football stars, an aggregation of superb-stars from points east, today were preparing to return to their respective colleges.

Led by a cortege of all Americans, the eastern team defeated the west by a score of 19 to 7 here yesterday. Under the hammering and smashing of Bronko Nagurski, of Minnesota, and Willis Glassgow, of Iowa, the forward wall of the west crumpled, allowing those two human catapults to tear through for great gains.

While Nagurski, Glassgow and "Frosty" Peters, of Illinois, were putting over the scoring punch, Jack Cannon, of Notre Dame, was smearing the West's plays in a manner that was a revelation. The West made its lone touchdown by a brace of passes to Holmgren, of Whitman, and Sloan, of Nebraska. Sloan finally punched the ball over for a score after the passes brought the ball close to the East's goal.

Jacobs Is Holder Of Indoor Tennis Title By Victory

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—William Jacobs of Baltimore City college today was the new holder of the national junior indoor tennis title as a result of his five-set victory over John Richardson of Dartmouth in the final round at the Seventh regiment armory here yesterday.

Both finalists displayed a brand of tennis which stamped them as potential first-ten men.

Marcus Hecht of New York, out-steaded Bernard Friedman of Philadelphia to take the boy's title.

The team of Sandy Davenport and Richard Downing won the national indoor doubles in a four-set engagement with Donald Frame of Harvard and Frederick Roll of Mercersburg academy.

Penn Quintet Tops Ohio State

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—The University of Pennsylvania basketball five had another intercollegiate victory to its credit today, as a result of a 31 to 25 win over Ohio State here last night.

Frank Parker of Milwaukee, paired with Giles Verstraten of New York, whipped Friedman and Hecht for the boys doubles crown.

The commission also has deputized Jimmy Slattery and Lou Scozzia to fight for the vacant light heavyweight title and nobody is greatly excited about that, either, although this is hardly a matter for calmness and self-restraint. They are the best and I make this statement in perfect faith. There is no such thing as the best lightweight. They are all bad.

YOU CAN'T GET AWAY FROM IT

Westminster To Meet Grove City On Friday

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 2.—All eyes turn to Grove City tomorrow night as Coach Bob Thorn's newest Grover quintet threatens the district prestige of Coach Johnny Lawther's fast-stepping Titans. Questions in the minds of district fans concerning the strength of Thorn's newest five and the ability of Westminster to keep at the top of the heap will be answered in the most important district court game of the month.

The Grovers are willing to admit that they are back in their usual winning way and have served notice that they intend to mow down all opposition. The Titans, minus Tudor Lewis, are suffering from sickness and injury and consider themselves the underdog in the contest. All of which means that there is a growing sentiment that Grove City has a little bit of an edge in Friday night's important game.

If both teams play their best ball, the game will be a close one. Burke, Ryan, Fegey, Hildebrand, Stavnisky and McCann are the six who will bear the brunt of the Grover burden of defeating Westminster; while O'Donovan, Delahunty, Crowell, Rice, Considine, Kocheran, Hamas, Fisher, Newton and Blanner will have to do the playing of the Titans.

If Brownlee is unable to play, Ted Blanner of Sharon will be groomed to alternate with Crowell at the center post. Blanner played center against Adrian on New Year's eve and did a fair job of it. In all probability Lawther will start Captain All of which means that there is a growing sentiment that Grove City has a little bit of an edge in Friday night's important game.

Armco Team Will Be Met Tonight By Booster Five

The New Castle Boosters will journey to Butler tonight to meet the strong Butler Armco team. The Geneva college team recently handed the Armco boys defeat in a tough battle. The game will be played on the Armory floor and will start at 8:30 o'clock.

Coach Arnold "Fix" Frazer is confident that the Booster team can take the measure of the Armco team tonight. The Boosters are asked to meet at the "Y" at 6:30 o'clock sharp for the trip to Butler.

Football Rules Are Not Changed

Only Few Minor Alterations Made For Football Rules To Be Used In 1930

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Those football fans who shuddered at the thought of the annual muddle of the Rules Committee were breathing easier today after the report of E. K. Hall, chairman of the American Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

For, in contrast with previous years, when many important and sometimes puzzling changes were made, Chairman Hall's report forecasts only minor alterations when the rules moguls meet.

"I think I speak for all my associates in expressing the belief that the experience of the past year has disclosed neither the necessity nor the desirability of any material change in the rules," said Hall in his report.

Continuing an analysis of the past season, the Chairman of the Rules Committee stated that evidence showed that the changes made in the rule during the past few years were steadily proving their worth.

Fumble Rule Defended
Hall spoke vigorously in defense of the famous fumble rule which makes the ball dead at the point of recovery.

"At the beginning of the season there was much doubt expressed as to the wisdom of this rule," he admitted.

Experience proved, however, that the rule served to open up the game and was highly acceptable, Hall contended.

The Chairman of the Rules Committee also answered the criticism that the fumble rule robbed the spectator of one of the greatest thrills of the game, declaring that the spectator, after all, is a minor concern and that football was really designed to provide wholesome sport for the hundreds of thousands of boys who play it rather than to provide thrills for the tens of millions of those who watch them play.

Romeo Pacelli Wins His Bout

Romeo Pacelli, New Castle's good little featherweight boxer got started off on the right foot for the new year when he defeated Ken Hargreaves of New Kensington in a battle at Motor Square Garden Pittsburgh last night.

The New Castle boy was outwitted four and a half pounds by the Kensington fighter, but managed to score enough points to take the decision of Judge Frank Brown and Referee Fred Laughlin, while Judge Simco voted a draw.

It was a rousing battle, according to reports, with the New Castle boy the aggressor throughout the fight, and Hargreaves always on the defense and content to do nothing but counter.

It was due to the fact that Pacelli showed a willingness to fight that he was given the verdict. The rally of the New Castle boy earned him many points in the closing rounds. The boys continued their battle after the bell had rung, and Referee McGaughlin had to pry them loose. Hargreaves weighed 132, while Pacelli tipped the beam at 127.

Who And What In 1929 --- November

By JACK SORDS

Sports Review 1929 --- November

By NORMAN E. BROWN

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Central Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Ol' John Piggins held the boards during the month of November as far as sport fans were concerned. Intercollegiate games and upsets marked the week-end struggles during the month.

NOV. 2—Harvard broke into the intercollegiate limelight by a rather surprising 14-0 victory over a touted Florida eleven. Chicago journeyed east and trimmed Princeton 13-7.

Notre Dame treated Georgia Tech rough kicking the southerners 25 to 6. California trounced South California 15 to 7 in the biggest upset of the year on the Pacific coast.

NOV. 3—Eddie McGaughy, famous middleweight of a decade or so ago, died in Milwaukee. John E. Madden, famous Kentucky turfman and breeder of six Kentucky Derby winners, died in New York.

NOV. 4—Jimmy McLarin was given eight of ten rounds in a thrilling fight with Cammy Mandell, lightweight champ, in Chicago, but the jolly title wasn't at stake.

NOV. 9—Michigan defeated Harvard in intercollegiate battle at Ann Arbor, Mich., 14 to 12. Harvard almost snatching victory away from the westerners by an aerial attack in the last few minutes of play, completing seven forward passes.

New York University took Georgia over in their battle, 27 to 19. Illinois defeated the Army 17 to 7. The first score for Illinois came when Murrell's punt from behind his own goal line was picked up on the eight-yard line by Kaval of Illinois and converted into a touchdown.

The westerners' second touchdown came when Wolfgang, Illinois end, intercepted a forward pass from Cagle to Murrell and ran 80 yards for a touchdown.

NOV. 14—"Iron Man" Joe McGinnity, famous old Giant pitcher, died at his daughter's home in Brooklyn, N. Y., after a long illness. McGinnity, once a teammate of Christy Mathewson, set a modern record when he pitched 51 games in a season, 1904. He shut out the Athletics for the Giants, in the world's series of 1905, that remarkable series in which all games were won by shutouts. Mathewson pitching three scoreless games, McGinnity one and Chief Bender one. McGinnity was given credit for being the "original iron man," performing the feat of pitching and winning two games in a day.

NOV. 16—Notre Dame defeated Southern California 13 to 12, the failure of Jim Musick, California full-back, to kick the extra point following California's second touchdown costing the coast team a tie. New York University set back Missouri, 14 to 0, in the other outstanding intercollegiate battle.

NOV. 23—Chicago added another intercollegiate victory to its list by trouncing the Washington Huskies of the Pacific coast, 26 to 6. Harvard surprised the east by defeating Yale 10-6 and the Oregon Aggies, going eastward, spoiled the national title hopes of Detroit by defeating that team, 14 to 7.

NOV. 30—Jack Elder's dash of 100 yards for a touchdown and Carideo's boot for the point after touchdown gave Notre Dame a 7 to 0 victory over the Army at New York.

The half ended 26 to 0 with Southern California leading. Pitt could not score more than one touchdown in any quarter. The third quarter was the best scoring period for the coast team.

Crowd Attends Church Of God Opening Service

Long Service Containing Four Interesting Sessions Holds Crowd Wednesday Night

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 2.—When the time came for the opening service of the First Church of God, corner of North street, and Orchard Avenue, on New Year's eve, an enthusiastic crowd greeted their pastor and evangelist, Rev. L. Earl Slacum. The long looked for moment had come. They were now realizing their dreams.

Four interesting sessions were held. The audience never wavered. There were new people that came into each session. Just as the hands of the clock pointed to twelve, and while the whistles were blowing, sixty-seven devout people knelt in prayer to initiate the coming in of 1930.

Although the program being one of great length, four and one half hours, the interest of the audience was held by the interesting features of the various programs. Rev. Bert Williams, pastor of the First Baptist church, gave a most interesting and edifying message on the subject, "The Fullness of the Spirit," using as his text, the testimony of a man he heard several years ago, "After eleven months of hard drilling I struck a gusher. The young people gave their pastor and the church a pleasant surprise with a very interesting program in keeping with the season. Rev. Slacum who is conducting the revival gave one of his excellent addresses on the subject, "The Spirit of Victory." In part it was as follows:

"We often wish we could close out the past and begin anew. Providence has arranged the program of life that it may be so. The mystical hand of night erases from us yesterday's worries, tired muscles and nerves, and the new day presents entirely a new prospect and opportunity. We are not approaching the day of new resolutions, many of which will be broken, many of them will never be begun. But with others this will be an entirely new day. They will reach a new experience in conversion. They will enter a new creation with renewed strength, vision, vigor, zeal, spirit, environment, associations, and life."

The long sessions of New Year's eve did not keep the crowd from being present on the next evening at the first service of the revival. Rev. Slacum preached on the subject, "God and His Relations to Life and Death." This evening the meeting will begin again at 7:45 p. m. Rev. Slacum will preach on the subject, "Shall We Believe the Bible as It Reads?"

FAREWELL AND WELCOME BANQUET TUESDAY

A farewell party and banquet was tendered Mrs. J. E. Carpenter, former teacher of the Boethian Circle of Presbyterian Sunday school Miss Beulah Wilson, and a welcome for Mrs. C. H. Butler who is a member and has returned recently from South America.

The banquet was served by the Missionary ladies for Miss Wilson at 6:30. Thirty-two ladies sat down to the table which was placed in the form of a cross the center pieces were small Christmas trees. A large tree beautifully trimmed and lighted adorned one corner. Baskets of pointzetta's and evergreen were used in the room making a very pretty scene for the guests who were coming to a business meeting and dinner.

A program was arranged with music during the dinner and after. Music by the class. Piano solo, Mrs. V. E. Dindinger. Solo, Mrs. C. F. Morrow. Solo, Miss Erma Blythe. The regular business meeting followed with the election of officers. President, Miss Erma Blythe. Vice-President, Mrs. C. F. Morrow. Secretary, Mrs. C. E. Coulter. Treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Marshall.

A very interesting talk was given by Mrs. C. H. Butler, all about her trip and things that she saw while away. The out-of-town ladies who were members of class at one time, and were present were Mrs. C. H. Butler, honor guest, Mrs. Harry Huffman, Mrs. Jas. Jennings all of Ellwood, Mrs. C. N. Moore of Greenville and Mrs. C. V. Marshall of Sharon.

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by those present.

KIDDIES PARTY AT CHURCH TUESDAY

The teachers and officers of the primary department of the Presbyterian Sunday school held the annual Christmas party for kiddies on Tuesday afternoon in the church.

A special program was arranged. Games and a Christmas tree with gifts for each and every one. A dainty lunch was served by the committee in charge.

There were 70 present, teachers and officers included. A delightful time was enjoyed by the kiddies.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY BY C. E. S.

The C. E. society of the Presbyterian church held their annual social and watch meeting Tuesday night.

About 25 of the members enjoyed the evening immensely. Rev. Bingham and Earle Herbert gave short talks and a committee composed of Mary E. Wagner chairlady, Misses Dorothy Morrow and Naomi Herbert and Tony Martin assisted by Mrs. E. L. Hennon, Miss Gail Hammer and Earle Herbert served delicious refreshments.

Miss Elizabeth Reno had charge of the devotional program.

Local Athlete Star In Classic

Radio Owners Thrill To Account Of MacMurdo's Prowess Wednesday

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 2.—Every one in Ellwood City who owned a radio listened in Wednesday afternoon at the relayed report of the foot-ball classic in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California between the University of Pittsburgh and Southern California. And all were thrilled to hear the announcers praise Jim MacMurdo, husky member of the Pitt team.

In spite of the fact that the California team had a heavy lead the local lad made several fine tackles, spoiled a pass, and followed a punt with a successful tackle. He was clearly the outstanding player for the Pitt team and millions of people listening to the game heard one of the announcers say "Ellwood City has every reason to be proud of Jim MacMurdo."

Close Basketball Game At Shelby

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 2.—A large crowd cheered lustily through two peppy inter-departmental basketball games Wednesday night on the Shelby floor.

A close contest was staged between the Inspection-Lab and Finish-Cold Draw teams, resulting in a victory for the former of 26 to 25. This was the first win of the season for the Inspection-Lab. The other game was a tilt between the Mechanical and Hot Mills fives with a score of 33 for the former and 19 for the Hot Mills.

Four good teams will play on Saturday night: Specialty vs. the Hot Mills and Mechanical vs. the Office quintet.

Shooting Of Maid Held Accidental

Milton J. Budlong, Jr., Accidentally Shoots Maid With New Rifle

(International News Service) SEENK, Mass., Jan. 2.—Officials today had decided that the fatal shooting of Miss Margaret M. Ahearn, a maid, by Milton J. Budlong, Jr., Thirteen-year-old son of the oil magnate and his wife of Newport fortune, was accidental.

Young Budlong, playing with a new rifle at the home of Claude R. Branch, first assistant to the solicitor general of the United States, entered the front parlor.

While eyes dancing Young Budlong called to the maid, "Hands up." Miss Ahearn laughed back. The rifle was accidentally discharged and the maid pitched forward, wounded in her throat.

MORAVIA STOP

One of the most enjoyable watch meetings ever held at the Harmony Baptist church was the one which began at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening and ended at 12:30 Wednesday morning.

A series of stereopticon slides was given, showing the surroundings and work of the Baptist mission around the Korean of Burma. The pictures were accompanied by a lecture by Rev. S. L. Cobb explaining step by step the scenes shown by the slides. The hymn "I Gave My Life For Thee" was also illustrated and was most impressive and beautiful. The audience then adjourned to the dining room where a delicious lunch was served by the young people of the B. Y. P. U. and a social hour was enjoyed by all. Returning to the auditorium a very sacred and beautiful "watch" service was led by Rev. Cobb and the year passed out on the wings of prayer.

Marie White spent the past week-end with friends in Ellwood City.

Mrs. Clarence Vaneman and children spent New Year's day in New Castle.

LOOP'S "IRON MAN" LOSES MOST

William Watson Clark, Brooklyn Dodgers' southpaw, turned in a remarkable though not exactly enviable record during the 1929 National league season, according to official pitching averages, just released. William pitched the greatest number of innings, 279, faced the most batters, 1,189; allowed the most hits, 295, and lost the most games, 19.

Boosters Trim Collegians And Christians Win

Boosters Down Collegians 23-11; Central Christians Defeat Butler Church Five

The New Castle Boosters added another to their long list of victories at the Y. M. C. A. court on Wednesday night, by dropping the Collegians 23 to 11, in a good game. The Central Christians upset the Robert Wilson Memorial church team of Butler 45 to 9, in the preliminary game.

The Butler church five did not have a chance against the powerful Christian team, and at the end of the first half it was quite apparent that the visitors were not in a class with the locals. The score stood at 27 to 3 at half time. Vago, A. Bauman, and Cowmeadow led the attack for the winners, with Nevins the best bet for the Butliers. It was a complete rout for the Evans coached combination.

The Boosters took the New Castle Collegians in the final game of the evening, when the Beaver Falls K. E. C. team cancelled their game here. The Collegians composed of former New Castle high boys home on Christmas vacations, put up a fine game against the Boosters, but fell short several points of victory. The score was 23 to 11.

At the end of the half the score favored the Boosters 9 to 5. Neither team could cage the ball effectively the first half. Uhle and Bruce led the Boosters with Johnson the only Collegian able to tally.

In the final half of the game the Boosters unleashed an attack that netted fourteen points, while the best the Collegians could do was six points.

The summaries:
Butler 9 Central Christians 45
Speers F. Vago
Speers F. A. Bauman
Dunkle F. E. Bauman
Smoyer G. Paulini
Hooks G. Cowmeadow
Subs: Kester, Butler, Watson, McClure. Field goals: Speers, Nevins 2, Vago 5, Watson 2, A. Bauman 4, E. Bauman 2, Paulini 3, McClure, Cowmeadow 4. Butler, 3 out of 6. Christians 3 out of 4. Referee, Coen.

Boosters 23 Collegians 11
Kulich F. Reider
E. Lockley F. Johnson
Bruce C. McClelland
S. Lockley G. Sillman
Uhle G. Wallace
Subs: Fraser, Frattuty. Field goals: Kulich, Bruce 2, S. Lockley 2, Uhle 3, Johnson 2, Sillman. Fouls: Boosters, 5 out of 12. Collegians, 5 out of 9. Referee Coen.

Transport Company Seeks Permission To Operate Line

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Jan. 2.—Permission to operate airplanes for both freight and passenger service was sought in an application with the public service commission today by the Lewistown Air Transportation company.

January 15 has been set as the hearing date for the application.

Lindberghs Leave For Kansas City

Colonel Lindbergh And Wife Leave St. Louis For Inspection Trip At Kansas City

(International News Service) ST. LOUIS, Jan. 2.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife, the former Anne Morrow, took off for Kansas City from Lambert—St. Louis flying field at 10:30 this morning.

The colonel, who is on a routine inspection trip of the Trans-Continental Air Transport Inc. lines, spent the New Year's holiday in St. Louis.

The Lindberghs, in the Curtis-Falcon plane which the Colonel is piloting, are expected to arrive in Kansas City about noon.

Grove City Downs Gerson Jewelers

Gerson Jewelers were defeated at Grove City by the Lions Club of that place by a score of 22-15. The Jewelers made the trip with "Sae" Lewis, star center and captain, and "Eph" Solomon, missing from the lineup, which broke up their combination.

Herman D. Plant was the big noise for the Jewelers. The game was played in the Grove City Armory as a preliminary to the game between the Mercer Whippets and P. Q. Company of Grove City.

The lineup and score:
GERSONS 15 LIONS CLUB 22
H. Levine F. Adams
Rogovin F.
J. Solomon C. Barber
Plant G.
Davids G.
Substitutions—Gersons: C. Levine for H. Levine; Choen for Solomon. Lions: Hosack for Adams. Field goals: Mook 2, Barber 2, McIntyre 2, Adams, H. Levine 2, Plant 2, Davids, Solomon, Fouls—Grove City 8 out of 12; Gersons, 3 out of 6. Referee—Bohlender.

There's hardly anything left for Byrd now, unless he wants to try sliding down Niagara in a plane.

Prince To Resume African Hunting Trip Is Reported

Prince Of Wales Will Soon Go To Africa To Resume Disrupted Hunting Trip

NEW GUNS REPLACE OBSOLETE TYPE

By F. A. WRAY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Final preparations were being made today by the Prince of Wales for his departure for Africa to resume the hunting trip which was cut short by his father's illness late in 1929.

The Prince is leaving tomorrow aboard the Union Castle Liner Kenilworth Castle for Cape Town.

The heir to the throne spent the morning at York House, his London residence, superintending the packing of his belongings, which include an entirely new hunting arsenal. The Prince found on his last trip that most of his guns were obsolete and inadequate, and one well-known gun authority told International News Service that some of them were actually dangerous.

Guns Replaced.
Most of the guns the Prince inherited from his grandfather, King Edward, also an enthusiastic hunter. They served their purpose, and have now been replaced with guns of the most modern type.

This afternoon the Prince will make a round of calls to bid farewell to friends and members of his family. He is scheduled to pay a visit to his brother, The Duke of York, and the Duchess at their Piccadilly home, and it is probable he will dine this evening with the king and queen and his younger brothers at Buckingham Palace.

There will be no formality about this trip. The Prince will live as a hunter among hunters, sitting at the same campfires and sharing the same food and the same dangers.

Detroit Police Hunt For Gunman

Detroit Underworld Being Combed For Would-Be Assassins Today

(International News Service) DETROIT, Jan. 2.—State police as well as Detroit officers are combing underworld haunts in and out of the city this afternoon in an attempt to round up would-be assassins who this morning wounded Inspector Henry J. Garvin, head of the police crime and bomb squad, and an 11-year-old girl, a bystander, as Garvin was driving in his automobile to his work.

Two automobiles, one closely resembling a police scout car, were used by the gangsters, it was said by police here. The buckshot, dum-dum bullets and revolver shots fired from what was believed to be an Oakland touring car, but described by Garvin as a big black sedan, only slightly wounded Garvin. The girl, Lois Bartlett, whose family moved here from Muncie, Ind., only six months ago, will recover, hospital surgeons said.

Guardsmen Get More Booze From Sea

(International News Service) RYE BEACH, N. H., Jan. 2.—Ten more cases of bootleg liquor have been salvaged in Rye Beach off this famous summer seaside resort, bringing the total number of cases recovered by coast-guardsmen since December 10 to 566.

It was estimated that 700 cases of booze were thrown overboard when a ship was in danger of going on the rocks in the shallow waters off here during a storm. A number of cases of the liquid were recovered by private individuals and it is thought that all of the cases have now been salvaged except for the few which were lost by pounding on the rocks.

Lax Motorists Are Arrested By Police

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Jan. 2.—Twelve hundred autoists who blithely disregarded frequent warnings and failed to equip their cars with 1930 license plates already have been arrested by members of the state highway patrol, Captain Wilson C. Price, superintendent of the service said today.

The patrol refuses to accept excuses of any kind for operating without licenses. The fine in each instance is $10, and costs.

GETS LEGACY FROM FATHER HE NEVER SAW

(International News Service) BOSTON, Jan. 2.—Receiving a legacy from a person he never knew was the novel experience of Harry Barry, 40, of Dorchester, facing upon receiving news of the death of his father whom he had never seen.

Jeremiah Barry of Malden, foster-father of Harry, informed him that his real father had died and left him a sum of money.

Now Harry can do nothing but sit at home ad wonder just how much money he may be due to receive from his father's estate.

If poverty causes, theft, why do the swell hotels make their room rate high enough to cover the towel shortage.

If the bravest are the tenderest, the steer whose loin was had for dinner met a sad fate. A jack rabbit chased him to death.

Read Testament In Record Time

(International News Service) LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 2.—More than 100 men, women and children, reading in "relays" established today a new record of less than sixteen hours for the reading of the entire new testament of the Bible. Readers ranged in ages from five to 79, when five-year-old Johanna Johnson was followed by C. Oliver Barnes, 79, the oldest printer here.

The unique contest was staged by Rev. Ambrose M. Bailey, pastor of the First United Baptist church, in an effort to show to his flock the beauty that was contained in the Bible.

Grant's Grandson Host To Tourists

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Lt. Col. U. S. Grant, 3rd, whose grandfather led the Union forces in the Civil war, is the local general of a vast army comprising natives of both the North and South and the East and the West. It's the army of tourists, always charging here to see the sights and come in all sorts of motor contraptions.

It's Grant's duty to take care of those who do not plan to patronize the hotels; the type who "rough it along."

He has had a little colony of cabins erected at the tourist camp along the Potomac and has started preparations to erect more because of the great influx of motor tourists.

PHONOGRAPH RECORDS CONFESSIONS MADE

(International News Service) BUDAPEST, Jan. 2.—To prevent subsequent denial of confessions, the Budapest police introduced the phonograph as the newest method of recording an examination.

Criminals, using the old trick of complicating their trial by denying their former confessions, will certainly not miss the benefits of technical progress, when they find themselves confronted with their own voice.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Buoyant Move Marks Stock Market Opening

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The stock market greeted the New Year with a buoyant move in a dozen or more of the speculative favorites including U. S. Steel, General Electric and Foreign Power, American Can and a number of the Rails, Motors and Oils. Investment buying by those who are to share in the billion-dollar January interest and dividend distribution and accumulation by speculators who unloaded in the last two weeks of December.

Tuesday's heavy "cash" selling was believed to have paved the way for the picking up of stocks in good value by speculators who were waiting to see which way the speculative cat would jump immediately after the turn of the year. It is too early to judge on this point, but industrial heads who have made an exhaustive study of the situation confidently predict a decisive though slow, recuperation in business.

U. S. Steel moved up nearly 3 points to 173 3/4 days in the leadership of the bull move in the first hour but dropped back under the profit-taking of fairly large volume. The Oils and Motors stepped to the front the latter receiving a boost from the approaching annual motor show opening Saturday. Baldwin Locomotive was active and strong on reports of increasing orders for railroad equipment. General Electric new stock was also a favorite around 63 and Radio around 45.

Bulls in the stock market held up prices in a number of their favorite stocks, but the market was still strongly under the thumb of the professionals, and considerable juggling for small profits and juggling around for tactical advantages took place in the second hour. Under this process some stocks advanced while others declined. Big Steel lost the most of its early rally while American and Foreign Power forged ahead to 98 1/2 for a new 2 1/2 point gain.

Though the call loan rate remained at 3 per cent, the money situation was easier and Wall Street looked for lower rates before the end of the week.

A LATE DISCOVERY
A record in the state auditor's office at Little Rock discloses that back in 1892 President Hoover worked as an assistant to the state geologist of Arkansas, was known as "Bert" and was paid liberally at the rate of $40 a month. Isn't it possible that if these facts had been known in the middle of last year's campaign, Arkansas might have swung into the ranks of Hoover states? Or could Senator Joe Robinson have proved that it wasn't Mr. Hoover, but a man of the same name?—Kansas City Star.

BARGAIN DAY
"It has been along and tiring journey," said an Englishman to a Scotchman, as the London-Aberdeen express neared its destination. "Aye," agreed the Scotsman, "and see it ought to be for the money."

Program Being Mapped By Wets

Wets Plan Heated Campaign To Ultimately Modify Volstead Act

PLATFORM IS BEING FORMED

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—An ambitious program designed to halt the alleged invasion of the constitutional rights of citizens in enforcement of the prohibition law and ultimately to bring about modification of the Volstead act is being developed by congressional "wets," it was disclosed today.

This is the answer of the anti-prohibitionists to the plans of the administration to reorganize the whole system of dry law enforcement, and the controversy raging among Senate drys.

The "wet" campaign is expected to bring before Congress and the country for the first time since national prohibition became effective, a real "wet platform" around which all liberals may rally.

During the entire congressional war over prohibition, it is pointed out by leading "wets," there never has been a concrete program presented in opposition to the dry forces, and the "wet" opposition has been largely confined to sniping.

Platform Arranged
Among the planks which may be included in the "wet platform" are: Legislation providing heavy penalties for prohibition officers who violate the constitutional guarantees against search and seizure in raids.

Modification of section 581 of the tariff act of 1922 under which it is alleged, the coast guard and customs officers have virtual wartime powers to shoot and kill suspects.

Measure indemnifying innocent victims of the bullets of enforcement officers.

Bill prohibiting telephone and telegraph wire-tapping to obtain evidence, as an invasion of personal liberties guaranteed the individual under the constitution. The supreme court has held wire tapping legal.

Modification of Volstead law and provision for taking of a nation-wide "wet" and "dry" referendum as a part of the 1930 census also may become a part of the platform.

"I am confident the anti-prohibitionists of the House will present a real 'wet platform' to Congress and the nation in the near future," said Rep. Schafer (R) of Wis., explaining the plan.

Consideration Modification
"Several methods of modifying the Volstead act will be considered. I shall advocate a program in line with the temperance plan of Justice Franklin Chase Hoyt of New York in the Hearst papers contest.

"Repeal or modification of section 581 of the tariff act of 1922 certainly will be urged. Under this provision and the present interpretation, customs officers have powers equal to sentries in war-time.

They may shoot if someone fails to stop at their command. Abuse of this has already led to the killing of many innocent people.

"The criticism of Judge McCormick of the president's law enforcement commission of the illegal acts of prohibition officers and their failure to recognize the doctrine that 'a man's home is his castle' will be the subject of another plank.

"The 'wets' never have and never will attempt to block the reasonable demands of government agencies charged with administration of the law. Some anti-prohibitionists would appropriate hundreds of millions just to prove the law can't be enforced. I am opposed to pouring the taxpayers' money down a sewer."

Astronomers Hear Unusual Facts

(International News Service)
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 2.—Infinity stretches beyond 150,000,000 light years.

After one of the most extensive studies ever undertaken to determine the size of the universe, Dr. Knut Lundmark, director of the Lund observatory in Sweden told more than 70 leading American and European astronomers and observers, in convention at Harvard University that although he had failed to reach infinity, his figures extended to the above figure.

In miles the figures would be 879,854,400,000,000,000,000.

That the earth's crust actually shifts as the result of the gravitational pull of the moon, was the theory advanced by Dr. Harland T. Stetson, director of the Perkins Observatory at Ohio Wesleyan University.

Bears Control Market Today

(BULLETIN)
By W. S. COLEMAN
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The bull market in industrial and specialty stocks struck a snag today when the bears returned in full force to the market with a liberal sprinkling of selling orders for the speculative favorites which began the new year with a spurt to higher price levels.

The buying orders which flowed over the holiday forced prices of a score or more of the active stocks to 4 points above last year's final prices, but there was apparently more haste to sell at the higher prices than to buy. It required small offerings to force down the prices of the favorites, in some cases below Tuesday's final values. Once again the market developed into a professional affair, with narrow price changes and with a few of the favorites swinging backward and forward erratically.

Steel Moves Up
Squeezing of the shorts in American and Foreign Power resulted in a 3 1/4-point advance in that stock to 99 1/4. U. S. Steel moved up to 173 3/4 and United Aircraft to 50 1/2, for a gain of 3 points. Bears on the floor of the stock exchange were credited with the heavy selling of the mail order stocks and specialties in a sharp "drive" which carried prices off 3 to 5 points. Sears Roebuck was under fire and dropped off nearly 6 points from its opening to 85 1/4.

Weakness in U. S. Steel, following reports that the steel industry was operating at only 45 to 55 per cent of capacity, was a disappointment to the bulls. The stock dropped to 169 in the early afternoon. Carrying a number of speculative favorites with it, and the bulls were once again in flight.

Only Short Time Required To Make Pair Of Pants At Buckeye Factory, This City

Real team-work in every minute detail is shown in the making of articles of clothing in the Buckeye Factory, Butler avenue extension.

Great quantities of clothing material are used in this factory. The cloth is shipped to the factory from various points in the country. It arrives in huge rolls.

These rolls are unrolled on a long table, are marked into patterns, and then cut by an electrical cutting machine, guided by one of the men employees.

When the patterns are cut, they are taken over to other tables. Here one girl sews the seams down the sides, another makes the pockets, another finishes the lining, still another girl puts the material through the button-hole machine, expertly spacing the button-holes. This machine automatically cuts the button-hole and sews around it.

Another similar machine puts the button on in rapid succession. When the last stitch is sewed, they are taken to the pressing machine, where they are steam-pressed and ready for distribution among a number of stores.

This is the resume of the labor task to make a shirt or a pair of trousers. At this factory many other articles of clothing are made such as corduroy and wool and leather caps, heavy woolen lumber-jacks, khaki and cotton and blue work shirts. Also dress shirts and ties. Underwear is also made, except the knit kind.

The machine used in cutting collars is most interesting. On the bottom of a heavy weight, is fastened steel molds for the different shapes of collars. The edges of molds are extremely sharp and when the weight is let down on the collar material, cuts these shapes perfectly. The great cost of each mold explains one reason why they are such few different styles of collars. These are the collars which are later attached to the shirts at this factory.

No longer are overalls made at the factory, according to L. S. MacNab, manager. In further explanation of this, Mr. MacNab remarked:

"The working man dresses better than he used to. He often drives to work in a car. He doesn't find overalls as convenient as the modern work clothes or suits."

Upon entering the plant, one immediately hears the hum of a hun-dered sewing machines. Some of these are especially made for heavy material. One of the machines sews 3500 revolutions per minute, sewing three rows of thread at a time.

With this splendid machinery under the direction of expert workers, it only takes a few minutes to finish a garment.

Butler Plants Wins Bronze Safety Cup

(International News Service) BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 2.—The Columbia Rolling Mills Company has been awarded the $5,000 bronze safety trophy for having the lowest accident rate among 28 industrial groups.

With an employee enrollment of 2,000 persons, there were but 20 accidents in the year 1929.

Solomon isn't described as howling in anguish, so the joint account probably wasn't known in those days.

Police Get Shock When Blonde Woman Askes To Be Locked Up

An unusual and tense situation occurred at the city police station, one night this week, when there appeared in the waiting room of the place, a blond haired woman, who in a general way answered the description of the "blond killer" of Corporal Brady Paul.

Perhaps there would not have been the unusual situation, had she not remarked as she entered "I want to be locked up. I'm tired of living."

She was rushed into the chief's private room and Lieutenant of Police Pete Hillers, Mrs. Minnie McKibben, city police woman and other officers set about to determine who she was.

This was just another woman, who had personal troubles, which the police ironed out and when the conference was through, she was glad that they had not taken her at her word and locked her up.

Ambridge Boy Is Killed By Blast

Seven Others Injured As Home Is Wrecked By Gas Explosion During Celebration

(International News Service) AMBRIDGE, Pa., Jan. 2.—A gas-explosion today had killed Chester Bretinger, 9, of Ambridge, injured seven other persons and wrecked the home of the boy's parents here.

A leaking gas line is blamed for the explosion which occurred in the midst of the family celebration of the new year.

The injured included the boy's father and mother, a brother and two roomers at the house.
